I. Welcome Message from the Executive President

By preparing, qualifying and empowering the leaders of the future, and by strengthening government capacity in the UAE and the Arab world, the Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government School aims to promote effective public policy through focusing on applied research and engaging the public and private sectors in the development process.

Since its establishment in 2005 under the name Dubai School of Government, the School has proved its importance as a unique role model for academic institutions. The School works in close partnership with UAE government departments, combining applied research, training, consulting and academic programs. The school is a multidisciplinary think tank that provides a platform for knowledge creation and dissemination.

Collaborative efforts and the resilience in the face of crisis and challenges have enabled MBRSG to become the first research and teaching institution focused on governance and public policy in the Arab world. In this context, the School has taken on the task of disseminating the UAE's exceptional experience in governance and implementing the vision of His Highness Sheikh Mohammed Bin Rashid Al Maktoum, Vice-President and Prime Minister of the UAE and Ruler of Dubai.

It gives me great pleasure to invite and welcome you to familiarize yourselves with the School's diverse portfolio of knowledge sharing sessions and academic programs. As prospective students, the School will endeavor to provide you with career relevant skills, knowledge and applied expertise to enable you, and the School, to strive to build a brighter future for the UAE and the wider Arab region.

Executive President

The Registrar will notify students, in writing (in Letter or e-mail format), at the end of the first semester of study of their admission status. Student file records will be updated to reflect the decision.

The payment of fees is the responsibility of the student and, in the event of a student's sponsoring authority (if any) failing to make payment, the student will be held personally liable for payment.

MBRSG recognises that students have a variety of personal and financial circumstances and sets and collects Fees and Charges with this in mind.

The MBRSG School Council sets the Tuition Fees payable for each and all graduate programs of study at the commencement of each academic year (Semester 1 – Fall).

Students must be in good financial standing with MBRSG throughout their period of study. 'Good financial standing' means not owing MBRSG money (tuition and/or other fees due and payable) other than with the written consent of the MBRSG.

- in the case of self-financing students, where fees are being paid by approved instalments.
- where the MBRSG Finance Team has exceptionally granted permission for payment to be delayed.

Students withdrawing from MBRSG, temporarily or permanently, or otherwise failing for any reason to complete a program of study, are required to contact the Registrar's Office for further information about their fee's liability.

MBRSG shall not be under any obligation to disregard any part of the fees due, or to return any sums paid by, or on behalf, of the student.

Students who are admitted to any MBRSG Master or Executive Master program but exit with an award of Postgraduate Diploma, are liable to pay the full tuition fee appropriate to six (6) taught Modules as detailed in the Student Payment Guide (P-ACD-126).

5.5.1 Enrolment in a Third (3rd) and Subsequent Semesters of the Dissertation Module – Tuition Fees Payable

The Dissertation Fees, as noted in Tables 6 and 7 above, represent tuition fees payable for a maximum of two (2) semesters in which to complete the Dissertation Module.

Should a student be required to enroll in a third (3rd) semester, and in each subsequent semester, of a Dissertation Module, a tuition fee will be payable representing half (1/2) of the Dissertation fees noted in the applicable section of Tables (6 and 7) above for each semester thereafter, relevant to the program of study.

5.6 Tuition Fee Payment: Installment Options

MBRSG expects all students to pay their full tuition fee payments, based on Modules enrolled in, prior to the commencement of each semester. MBRSG recognizes that in some instances this is not possible, therefore students may ask MBRSG for permission to pay Fees by installments. Where permission is granted, MBRSG will set up an authorized payment arrangement.

Authorised payment arrangements must be formalised by an agreement signed at enrolment or such later date as may be agreed by the Finance Department. An additional administration charge may also be applied to authorised payment arrangements.

MBRSG will normally agree to a request to pay by installments through no more than six installments. Three installments are usually the preferred plan for instalments.

Authorised installment payment arrangements must be completed before the start of the relevant final academic assessment period in the academic year of the program of study.

MBRSG will not approve authorised installment payment arrangements for students who have not previously been in good financial standing.

For students who have an authorised three (3) payment Instalment Plan, the instalment plan is noted in the Table 7 below:

Table 7: MBRSG Tuition Fees Payment Installment Plan

MBRSG Tuition Fee Payment Installment Plan
Fall Semester 2023	Amount Payable
First Installment Due: 11 September 2023	33% of Semester Tuition Fees payable
Second Installment Due: 09 October 2023	33% of Semester Tuition Fees payable
Final Installment Due: 27 November 2023	34% of Semester Tuition Fees payable
Spring Semester 2024	Amount Payable
First Installment Due: 19 February 2024	33% of Semester Tuition Fees payable
Second Installment Due: 08 April 2024	33% of Semester Tuition Fees payable
Final Installment Due: 27 May 2024	34% of Semester Tuition Fees payable

5.7 Tuition Fees: Payment Options

The Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government provides various tuition fee payment options including:

5.7.1 Methods of Payment

- Cash
- *Cheques (returned check policy)
- Bank Transfer
- Bank Draft
- Credit Card (including online via the secure Payfort System)

5.7.1.1 Cash

Students may make cash payments to the MBRSG Accountant on the 13th Floor of the Convention Tower, within the Finance Office, from 7:30am – 3:30pm Monday to Thursday and from 7:30am to 12:00pm on Friday during semester.

5.7.1.2 Cheque Payments

Cheques should be made payable to The Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government and forwarded and or delivered to the MBRSG Accountant on the 13th Floor of the Convention Tower, within the Finance Office, from 7:30am – 3:30pm Monday to Thursday and from 7:30am to 12:00pm on Friday during semester.

5.7.1.3 Bank Transfer

Students who would like to pay their tuition fees via a bank transfer, should make payments to the MBRSG bank account, as noted in Table 8 below:

Table 8: MBRSG Bank Account Details for Fee Payment via Bank Transfer

Beneficiary	Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government
Bank Name	Mashreq Bank
Branch	Al Riqua
Account #	010393100316
IBAN #	AE89 0330 0000 1039 3100 316
SWIFT#	BOMLAEAD

5.7.1.4 Credit Card

Students may make a credit card payment, in person, with the MBRSG on the 13th Floor of the Convention Tower, within the Finance Office, from 7:30am – 3:30pm Monday to Thursday and from 7:30am to 12:00pm on Friday during semester.

Students may make an online credit card payment of tuition fees, via the Student Information System, using the secure Payfort payment platform. The Registrar's Office provides Guidelines for Online Payments using Payfort to all enrolled students at the commencement of semester (via e-mail).

5.8 Payment Options: Sponsored Students

If a student advises MBRSG that they are sponsored by their employer or other party for their tuition fees, the student MUST provide a Letter from their sponsor (on official corporate letterhead) confirming the sponsorship and the sponsor contact details. The MBRSG Finance Department will then invoice the Sponsor for payment of the tuition fees for the relevant semester of study.

If a student advises that they will be sponsored for tuition fee purposes, and for whatever reason, the sponsor is unable to pay the tuition fees due and payable, then the student will be responsible for paying any outstanding tuition fees.

5.9 Withdrawal and Refund of Tuition Fees

The Table 9 below specifies the percentage of tuition fee refund payable to a student who withdraws from a Module of study during the academic semester. The refund percentage is based on the week during which a student withdraws.

Table 9: MBRSG Refund Details based on Week of Semester in which the Student Withdraws from their Program or Module(s) of Study

Semester Week	Percentage Refund
Weeks 1 and 2 (Add / drop period)	100%
Week 3	75%
Week 4	50%
Week 5	25%
Week 6 and Beyond	0%

5.10 Financial Hardship – Financial Aid and Deferment of Payment of Tuition Fees

Students admitted to and enrolled on a graduate program of study, should advise the Manager of Financial Affairs immediately, should any issues of financial hardship arise due to a change in circumstances. Individual cases requesting financial aid or deferment of payment of tuition fees under financial hardship will be assessed on their merits. The provision of documentary evidence to support claims of financial hardship will be required.

5.10.1 Financial Aid

Applicants may indicate when completing their online ‘Application for Admission’ Form their interest in financial aid and/or financial assistance. These prospective students, who have previously demonstrated exceptional academic ability and/or professional distinction, as determined by the Dean, will be considered for financial aid or a scholarship award. Scholarships and financial aid awards will be automatically deducted from the overall tuition costs for students who receive them; based on the discretion of the Dean.

5.10.2 Deferment of Payment of Tuition Fees

Upon provision of supporting documentary evidence to support claims of financial hardship a decision as to, whether it is possible to defer payment of tuition and/or other outstanding fees will be made. Decisions regarding granting of financial hardship will be at the discretion of the Executive President based on advice from the Dean.

5.11 Consequences of Failing to Pay Tuition Fees and Charges

If a Student misses a payment date for Fees, the Student will not be in good financial standing, and may be subject to further action by MBRSG, including possible termination of enrolment.

Students who have defaulted upon an authorised payment arrangement will become immediately liable for full payment of the balance of their Fees and shall not normally be permitted to establish a new authorised payment arrangement.

Students whose enrolment is terminated will not be permitted to continue their program of study, receive an award certification, or attend their graduation ceremony.

In cases of students experiencing unexpected and significant hardship, the Director of Support Services has the discretion to consider and agree special or exceptional payment arrangements.

MBRSG takes seriously any attempt to pay through illegal means and cases of fraud, use of counterfeit credit cards or other false payments may be reported to the police or other authorities.

5.12 Request of Official Letters or Replacement Documents

The Registrar's Office can provide official letters to students based on their request through an official email only. Student must collect the original copy of the letter and pay the document fees which are shown in Table 10 below:

Table 10: Fees Payable for Request of Official Letters or Replacement Documents

Service Request	Fee Payable
Letter from MBRSG (i.e., confirming enrollment and/or Exams etc.)	25AED
*Academic Transcript & Letter	75AED
Replacement Testamur (Degree Certificate) (i.e., lost/destroyed)	250AED

*Students will be provided with one original Academic Transcript and Testamur (Degree Certificate), based on approval by the Exam Board and if awarded by the Award Board at the completion of their degree. Additional requests will incur a fee.

 MBRSG will only issue a 'replacement' Testamur (Degree Certificates) in English and/or Arabic if the original has been lost or destroyed. In such cases the student would need to sign a Declaration (available for the Registrar's Office) to this effect before we could issue a replacement. We then may be required to notify the Ministry of Education accordingly.

 In some instances, the MBRSG Board of Trustees may approve a Special Grant which reduces the tuition fees payable for an Academic Program. Should such a grant be approved, the tuition fees payable for a program of study, for a specific student, for a specific period will be stated in the Offer Letter provided to the student upon Admission to a program of study at MBRSG.

Section 6: Enrolment and Program Information

Upon confirmation of acceptance of an Offer of Admission to a graduate program of study at the Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government, students must then formally enroll or register online, using the Student Gateway, in specific Module(s) within their program each academic semester.

Students should seek to confirm their enrolment with the Registrar, prior to the start of each academic semester. Students can formally enroll in Module(s) up to and including the end of the add/drop period as noted in the Academic Calendar.

6.1 Enrolment Deadlines for 2023/2024 Academic Year

The deadlines for enrolment during the 2023/2024 Academic year are as follows:

- Fall Semester 2023: Monday 11th September 2023.
- Spring Semester 2024: Monday 19th February 2024.

6.2 Enrolment (Registration) Process

All new, continuing and returning students will need to complete an online Enrolment Form to select the Module(s) they wish to study in the upcoming academic semester. Students will be required to submit the online Enrolment Form using the Quercus Student Management System.

Students will be required to upload a Letter from their employer if they are employed (to confirm grant eligibility) and provide a Letter from their sponsor (if their sponsor will be paying their student tuition fees).

The Registrar will check the student enrolment details and e-mail the student to confirm enrolment in specific Modules for the relevant semester of study.

All students are encouraged to meet with their Academic Advisor prior to enrolment to confirm their program study plan. Students must be aware of their academic and financial standing prior to Enrolment. Enrolment may be restricted or not allowed based on decisions made by the Progression Board and whether all required tuition fees and other charges have been paid.

The Academic Timetable for the upcoming semester will be published online prior to the commencement of the Enrolment period. It will be accessible and downloadable from the Academic Programs Section of the MBRSG website.

Students must register in a Module(s) prior to attending classes. It is the responsibility of the individual student to monitor his/her registration status, which must be confirmed by the Registrar's Office.

New students are reminded that all original documents required for finalizing their admission, particularly those indicated in the Offer Letter are submitted to the Admissions and Registration Section before enrolment can commence.

Registration on behalf of another student or in proxy is not permitted.

6.3 Module Load

It is expected that full-time students will enroll in three (3) Modules per academic semester and that part-time students will enroll in two (2) Module each academic semester. Conditionally admitted students will be restricted to studying in a maximum of (2) Modules in their first semester of study until the condition(s) is/are satisfied.

To enroll in three (3) Modules per academic semester; new students must have been offered full admission status and for current/existing students they must be in good academic standing (i.e., achieving an overall average grade of Pass with Merit or more). Students under academic probation will be subject to restricted enrolment (one module per semester) until they return to good academic standing.

6.4 Full Time Study - Good Academic Standing

The Module load for a full-time graduate student in good academic standing is three (3) Modules (60 CATS credits in total) per semester. The Director of Academic Affairs must, at their discretion, approve a student in good academic standing (i.e., achieving an overall average grade of Pass with Merit or more). to enroll in three (3) Modules (60 CATS credits in total) per semester. This is determined at the Progression Board each Semester.

6.5 Part Time Study - Good Academic Standing

The Module load for a part-time graduate student in good academic standing is a maximum of two (2) Modules (40 CATS credits in total) per semester. Students studying in a part time mode must maintain a good academic standing (i.e., achieving an overall average grade of Pass with Merit or more).to enroll in two (2) Modules (40 CATS credits in total) per semester.

6.6 Conditionally Admitted Students

Students admitted on a conditional basis are normally limited to enrolment in two (2) Modules (40 CATS credits) of coursework in their first semester. The student must achieve an average grade of at least “Pass with Merit” to maintain a good academic standing.

6.6.1 Restricted Enrolment based on Conditional Admission

Conditionally admitted students are normally eligible to enroll in a maximum of (2) Modules (a maximum of forty (40 CATS) credits) in their first semester of study. These students will also enroll in the (not for credit) Foundation Course in Research Methods in Public Policy (ASM001).

Conditionally admitted students, should achieve a minimum of a “Pass with Merit” grade in their first Semester of graduate study, and satisfy any other conditional admission requirements (i.e., English Language Proficiency) to achieve Full Admission status.

If the student does not obtain the minimum grade of “Pass with Merit” in their first Semester of graduate study, or satisfy any other conditional admission requirements (i.e., Language Proficiency) the Chair of the Progression Board may recommend their dismissal from the graduate program, or the requirement to repeat a module(s) to attain good academic standing (i.e., achieving an overall average grade of Pass with Merit or more).

6.7 Restricted Enrolment - Academic Probation

Students who fail to maintain an overall average a “Pass with Merit”, under the CATS credit system, in each semester of study, will be placed on probation, on the determination of the Progression Board, in accordance with the Student Academic Progress Policy (P-REG-105).

Students who are subject to academic probation under the provisions of the Student Academic Progress Policy are restricted to enrolling in one (1) Module (a maximum of twenty (20 CATS) credits) in a semester of study.

Students are generally only allowed to incur one academic probation status during their program of study. Students placed on academic probation may be allowed an extension of up to two semesters to improve their overall average grade with approval of the MBRSG Progression Board. The student will be removed from academic probation when the student’s overall average grade (for the graduate program of study) meets a minimum of a “Pass with Merit”, under the CATS credit system.

If a student fails to meet the minimum overall grade of “Pass with Merit” after a period of study under the Academic Probation restrictions, the Progression Board will determine that the student should be dismissed from their graduate program of study. The Registrar’s Office will notify the student, in writing (e-mail), of the decision(s) of the Progression Board.

6.8 Orientation Session

Each new student admitted to a graduate program of study at MBRSG should attend the Orientation Session which is offered prior to the commencement of each academic semester. The Schedule for 2023/2024 is provided at Section 4.3.5 of this Catalogue.

6.9 Add and Drop Module(s)

Students can withdraw or enroll in (approved) modules before the published last date to add and drop, as set by the Board of Studies (See Section 6.1 for specific dates for 2023/2024 Academic Year). The Add/Drop provisions are in accordance with the Enrolment Policy (P-REG-110).

This date is also included in the Academic Calendar 2023/2024 (See Section VI page 30 and VII page 32 in this Catalog) and is available on the MBRSG website and uploaded on Blackboard prior to the start of each semester.

A student seeking to withdraw from a module should notify the Registrar's Office. See also Section 5.9, Table 12 of this Catalog, which summarizing the MBRSG refund policy upon withdrawal from a module(s) or program of study.

6.10 Withdrawal from a Module(s) after the Add/Drop Period: Academic Implications

As per the provisions of the Student Academic Progress Policy (P-REG-105) if a student withdraws from a Module or Modules of study, that have been formally enrolled in, after the end of the add/drop period, the following academic implications will arise, depending upon the date of withdrawal.

- Withdrawal from a Module with a grade of (W) Withdrawn recorded: If a student formally withdraws after the end of the add/drop period and up until the end of the seventh (7th) week of classes, a grade of 'W' will be recorded on the academic transcript for the Module(s) from which the student has withdrawn. A 'W' grade does not impact the student's overall average grade calculation.
- Withdrawal from a Module with a grade of (F) Fail recorded: As of the commencement of the eighth (8th) week of classes, a grade of 'F' (Fail) will be recorded on the academic transcript, for those students who formally withdraw from a Module(s). The student will receive 0% (F grade) for the Module and this will be used in calculating the student's overall average grade. It may also impact their ability to continue in their program of study dependent upon the decision of the Chair of the Progression Board. Full tuition fees will also be payable for the Module(s) they withdrew from in accordance with the provisions in the Student Payment Guide (P-ACD-126).

6.11 Withdrawal from a Master Program of Study

MBRSG recognizes that students may need to leave the program for a variety of reasons. Students who wish to leave a program must notify and get confirmation from the Registrar's Office and ensure that all equipment or property of MBRSG is returned. Prior to the release of any transcript to the student, all fees for studies completed to the date of leaving must be settled.

Academic credit will only be shown where a student has fully completed a module, and the mark for any assessment has been approved by the MBRSG Examination Board. See Section 5.9, Table 12 of this Catalog, which summarizing the MBRSG refund policy upon withdrawal from a module(s) or program of study.

6.12 Leave of Absence

Students are expected to maintain continuous enrollment (fall and spring semesters) until they complete their graduate program of study. However, in certain circumstances students may wish to apply for a Leave of Absence from their program of study in accordance with the provisions of the Deferral, Leave of Absence and Withdrawal Policy provisions detailed in the Enrolment Policy (P-REG-110). Such approvals may be granted from the Registrar's Office upon confirmation from the Director of Academic Affairs.

6.12.1 Leave of Absence: Up to Two Semesters

A graduate student may take up to two semesters off for a Deferral (prior to commencing a program of study) or for a Leave of Absence (during a program of study) from their graduate studies as per the provisions detailed in the Enrolment Policy (P-REG-110).

Students must apply in writing for a Deferral or Leave of Absence to the Registrar's Office. The Director of Academic Affairs will determine whether such requests are granted or not.

Reactivation of the student's record is automatic; however, students must submit a request in writing (hard copy or via e-mail) to the Registrar's Office one month prior to registration in the upcoming semester for which they intend to resume their program of study.

Graduate students who were on probation prior to interrupting their program of study must have the reactivation of their re-enrolment approved by the Director of Academic Affairs.

6.12.2 Leave of Absence: National Service

Students who have been on military service for longer than two semesters, will be exempted from the 2 (two) semesters leave of absence provision, and will be able to re-commence their studies, upon provision of a letter confirming the completion of their military service.

6.12.3 Leave of Absence: Longer than Two Semesters not due to National Service

Graduate students who were granted a Deferral or Leave of Absence from their graduate program of study but are absent for more than two consecutive semesters must submit a new application for admission to the Admissions Office as per the provisions detailed in the Graduate Re-Admissions Criteria Policy (P-REG-102).

Students who were previously on probation, or who were academically dismissed and who have been away longer than two consecutive semesters, must seek approval from the Director of Academic Affairs for a determination as to whether readmission will be allowed as per the Graduate Re-Admissions Criteria Policy (P-REG-102).

6.13 Attendance and Lateness

Student attendance and participation in all scheduled classes is expected as it is essential to teaching and learning and academic success in a graduate program of study at MBRSG. Student Attendance requirements are stipulated in the Student Attendance Policy (P-REG-107) and specific attendance requirements relevant to each Module are clearly stated in each Module Handbook. Student Attendance is monitored and failure to abide by the attendance requirements may lead to warning letter(s) and/or administrative withdrawal from the Module(s). Students must have a minimum attendance of 80% at all “face to face” classes. Failure to achieve the minimum attendance requirements may lead to the Exam Board awarding an F (Fail) grade for the Module.

6.14 Academic Advisor - Allocation

Academic Advising is an essential element of the educational process at the Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government.

MBRSG mandates that all students will be allocated an Academic Advisor and that all students should meet with their Academic Advisor at least once each semester. Students are assigned academic advisors who help them in planning their program of study. However, students are responsible for selecting their Modules, meeting Module prerequisites and adhering to all current School policies, procedures and regulations.

The Academic Advisor will provide guidance for the student in interpreting and fulfilling the requirements as specified in the School policies and procedures. Students are required to consult with their advisor on issues regarding degree requirements and prior to the commencement of the Dissertation Module.

More details regarding Academic Advising is available in the Student Advisement Policy (P-SA-103) and at Section 6.17 in this Academic Catalog.

6.15 Module Information

6.15.1 Module Code

Every Module in each graduate program of study offered by the School is represented by a three or four-letter prefix followed by a three or four-digit number indicating the level of the Module content.

6.15.2 Program and Module Credits

MBRSG has made a strategic decision to use the widely accepted Credit Accumulation and Transfer Scheme (CATS) to specify each of its Graduate programs.

With the wider acceptability and ability to transfer credit(s), CATS provides an advantage to students who may wish to undertake further study either in the UAE or abroad. All graduate programs and the associated Modules are valued in CATS credits and are detailed in the Module and Academic Credit Points Policy (P-ACD-128).

A Master Degree requires successful completion of 180 CATS Credits, whereas a Postgraduate Diploma requires successful completion of 120 CATS Credits. Each taught Module within a graduate program of study is worth 20 CATS Credits. The Dissertation Module is worth 60 CATS Credits.

Each CATS Credit represents a workload expectation to achieve the required teaching and learning outcomes and successfully complete a graduate degree program. The Table 11 below highlights the expected notional hours of study allocated for each CATS Credit across a Master's program of study. For each CATS credit, ten hours of study is expected. This includes actual teaching contact hours, directed study hours and independent study hours.

Table 11: CATS Credits (Notional Study Hours) per Program

CATS Credits (Notional Study Hours)
CATS Credit	180 CATS Credits	Teaching Contact and Directed Study	Independent Study	Total Study Hours
		900	900	1800
		900	900	1800

6.15.3 Module Descriptions and Module Handbooks

Program Information specific to each graduate program of study offered at the Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government (MBRSG) are detailed in Section 11 of this Academic Catalog and on the School website at www.mbrsg.ae

Module Descriptions for each Module, within a graduate program of study offered at MBRSG, are listed at Section 11 of this Academic Catalog and on the university website at www.mbrsg.ae under the relevant Academic Program.

The Module Handbook are updated each semester and provide information including Module title and Module code; prerequisites (if any) and co-requisites (if any); name, contact information and office hours of the instructor; Module description; Module teaching and learning outcomes; Module schedule; all assessments and due dates; assessment methods and the weights assigned to them, reading material and Module textbooks and recommended reading materials. Module Handbooks will be uploaded to the Blackboard (virtual learning environment).

6.15.4 Module Prerequisites and Co-requisites

During a graduate program of study, specific Modules may require a minimum background of knowledge as indicated by prerequisite Modules (which must be studied first). In some instances, specific Modules may be able to be studied together and these Modules are indicated as co-requisite Modules. Prerequisite and co-requisite Modules will be cited in individual Module descriptions.

Modules for which a grade below “Pass with Merit” was awarded may not satisfy prerequisite requirements and therefore may adversely impact a student’s progression throughout a graduate program of study.

6.15.5 Module Offerings and the Academic Timetable

Modules are offered at the discretion of the Director of Academic Affairs, who is responsible for managing all graduate programs at the Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government. Students should check with the Registrar and their Academic Advisor as to when (which academic semester) Module(s) will likely be offered as this will impact the student’s individual program study plan.

To accommodate graduate student work schedules, some graduate programs may schedule teaching over the weekend. For details on Module offerings please refer to the Academic Timetable which will be released prior to the start of each academic semester and available from the Registrar's Office and on the School website under Academic Programs.

6.16 Teaching and Learning Methods

You will be actively involved in a range of learning, teaching and assessment approaches as part of your graduate program of study. Such active approaches intentionally include student-centred, so you are involved and engaged in all aspects of your assessment and learning. All taught Modules at MBRSG (excluding the Dissertation) will require your active participation in learning activities and engagement with your fellow students both individually and collaboratively, working and learning with other students as part of a small group.

Students are expected to be prepared for these sessions having done the necessary reading or preparatory tasks that have been assigned or indicated on the syllabus. The use of guest lectures in modules is an added feature of many Modules.

Lectures are expected to be held in a "Face-to-Face" teaching mode on-campus during 2023/2024 academic year, supported by online materials and activities in the virtual learning environment (Blackboard). MBRSG, when required, may also conduct classes in a blended or fully online learning environment where necessary (as mandated during the recent Coronavirus pandemic). MBRSG will utilize Blackboard Collaborate to conduct online learning lectures. Such Lectures can be recorded and will be made available to students on Blackboard for future viewing.

6.16.1 Module Workload Expectations

Each Module, excluding the Dissertation, will include 45 hours of "face-to-face" teaching on campus. We expect you to put in an additional 155 hours of self-access study, for each Module, to enable success in your studies. Self-access tasks are completed at the learner's own initiative. The term self-access is a general classification under which, Directed Independent Learning (DIL) and other tasks done in preparation for classes and coursework are included. DIL activities are extension tasks that are aligned with learning outcomes of the Module, which students can complete in their own time individually or as a group outside of the teaching time with the faculty (see Section 6.16.4 on Directed Independent Learning below). Other examples of self-access tasks include:

- research about the weekly content,
- reviewing designated materials, lecture slides and handouts after each teaching session,
- participating in discussion boards or other formative assignments,

- working on summative assignments
- preparation for next lesson.

To gain the maximum benefit from the classroom sessions it is strongly recommended that students dedicate this time to preparation before attending the prescribed sessions.

6.16.2 Interactive Lectures

An ethos of student engagement underpins the interactive lecture technique, which is the main face to face delivery mode at MBRSG. In these weekly sessions your lecturer will deliver theoretical and conceptual constructs related to the module for each week.

Your lecturer will incorporate engagement activities in each class which will encourage student participation in a task that lets them work directly with the content in an applied manner. Activities could include, but are not limited to, discussions, simulations, model making or role plays. The interactive lecture technique captures and maintains student attention and allow students to apply what they have learned with the guidance of the lecturer. Delivering interactive lectures not only provide a format change from the traditional lecture, but they also provide students with an opportunity to immediately apply content and provide feedback to the instructor on student understanding.

6.16.2 Guest Lectures

The implementation of a structured guest lecturing program, particularly within Master in Public Policy elective, seeks to improve students' first-hand knowledge of contemporary public policy practices in specific sectors.

Guest Lectures aim to enhance the students learning experience by providing current and relevant examples of the practical applications of theory they are learning in a particular subject.

Guest Lectures provide students with an understanding of professional activity by providing a real-world example of applied theory.

6.16.3 Student Led Seminars

In a student-led seminar, pairs (or small groups) of students take responsibility for selecting and researching a topic, setting the goals for the session, deciding on the format and learning tasks, and facilitating the seminar on that day. Student-led seminars give students practice in defining issues, identifying questions for the class, exploring content in more depth and working in a team.

6.16.4 Directed Independent Learning (DIL)

To assist students in developing the essential reading, writing, study, or research skills and/or strategies needed to succeed in their Modules, Directed Independent Learning activities (DIL) will be designed by close collaboration among faculty in the content areas. This will require 80 hours of study time outside of class for the duration of this semester.

DIL activities are extension tasks that are aligned with learning outcomes of the Module, which students can complete in their own time individually or as a group outside of the teaching time with the faculty.

DIL activities are not graded but are very effective for formative assessment and student engagement outside of class contact time. Faculty members will factor the affective aspect of the students' response to the DIL by promoting the students' senses of self-confidence or self-efficacy about applying skills and/or strategies in the future.

6.16.3.1 Self-Access Study

Your Module Handbook provides the teaching plan which outlines various resources which you can access on your own to reinforce and enhance your learning. There are also numerous online sources of information that will be relevant to your graduate program of study. Time outside of class spent engaging with these materials count toward the 80 hours of self-access you are required to undertake in specified Modules.

6.16.4 Brief Guide to Web-based Module Material - Blackboard

Module materials are available on Blackboard (virtual learning environment). It is a place where you can find online materials to support your studies together with discussion areas, Module information and calendar dates. You should access Blackboard as soon as possible to access the web-based resources and commence your studies.

Blackboard Collaborate, which is a web-conferencing software, enables Lectures to be delivered and recorded in an on-line mode should this be required.

All materials and assessments for each Module can be accessed online and you will submit your written assessments via Blackboard through TurnItIn (text matching software).

6.17 Academic Advising

MBRSG is fully committed to ensuring that its students successfully complete their chosen program of study and wherever possible do not leave prematurely without obtaining an appropriate qualification. To ensure that students have a positive experience at MBRSG, academic advice and support is available throughout their program. The MBRSG Student Advisement Policy (P-SA-103) provides more information for students in respect of academic advice.

You will be assigned an academic faculty member as your personal academic advisor for the duration of your study. Any queries, concerns, or suggestions you have related to academic issues can be discussed with your advisor. It is your responsibility to book appointments with your advisor throughout the semester.

Students are expected to meet with their academic advisor a minimum of twice per semester (once prior to module registration and once during semester).

Academic advising is recognized as a crucial and valuable activity within the School, with the core tenet being to provide the best advice possible to graduate students. Such advice should, as noted above, enhance student retention, progression, and achievement.

Advising is primarily directed towards the academic program of the student. However, some advising can include non-academic recommendations, such as referrals to other services according to the needs of the student. Some aspects of academic advice also involve various administrative tasks. All academic advice must comply with MBRSG policies and procedures.

At the commencement of the first semester of study, each new student receives an orientation session to MBRSG. The orientation details the expectations of student study and provides a clear introduction to each of the modules of study, along with a library introduction, and enables the meeting all members of faculty and representatives of the management team.

Early in the first semester of enrolment, each student is allocated a personal advisor who is a member of faculty. Faculty Advisors counsel students on a variety of matters, the majority on a walk-in basis. Faculty Advisors may discuss special circumstances and personal issues affecting their students and offer guidance. For more specific advice, the student affairs manager will attempt to deal with the matter in the first instance, however, if the issue is not able to be resolved in this way, it will be passed to the Director of Academic Affairs.

The advisors who are directly involved with student support and performance are:

- Personal Faculty Advisor
- Module Leader
- Dissertation/Project Supervisor
- Director of Academic Affairs

MBRSG recognizes that attendance and participation at and during class timings is important to successfully completing a program of graduate study. Students who do not make the requisite attendances to classes are reminded by email. This is precautionary and ensures that the students can retrieve the situation without penalty. The Academic Advisor will also meet with students in these circumstances to reduce the possibility of students, failing to meet the attendance requirements, of being reported to the Board of Studies, following which any cessations of studies required by non-attendance is reported to the Exam Board.

The main aims of MBRSG advising services are to:

- Enable students to become more dependent on themselves in solving their own problems efficiently, helping them develop their own personal skills.
- Follow up on students who exhibit low levels of achievement to identify causes and raise student motivation to learn, improve achievement and overcome problems.

In accordance with the abovementioned aims, MBRSG academic advisors, will provide comprehensive and accurate advice to students in accordance with the following tenets:

- collaborative (advice will be given in a respectful manner and relevant consultation will be sought to ensure completeness of information and advice),
- consistent (advice will be in accordance with relevant policies and regulations and be equitable and fair across all students),
- communicative (advisors will provide timely, complete, and understandable advice), accessible (advisors will be available at convenient and appropriate times to facilitate advice),
- representative (advisors will be experienced, engaged and active in the student experience during their program of studies) and
- student-centred (advisors will provide information in the best interests of students to enable them to become independent and resourceful learners).

6.18 Student Records

The Mohammad Bin Rashid School of Government, as an educational services provider, has relevant policies and procedures in place to record, maintain and secure data and information provided by applicants, current students, and past students. In recording and maintaining this information, the School will adopt appropriate standards regarding information security and confidentiality accordingly.

6.18.1 Custody of Records

Admissions and Registration Section staff are responsible for creating and maintaining the accuracy and currency of the student records in physical and/or digital format. MBRSG utilizes a (Cloud-Based) Student Information System known as Quercus. In addition to the retention, archiving and destruction of administrative records related to the student in accordance with school approved procedures.

All students are responsible for providing and maintaining accurate personal information and details of his/her sponsor to the school. The student must also provide written consent for his/her personal and academic information to be released thought-out the duration of his/her enrollment in the School to any sponsor, person, or organization with whom the student has contractual or legal obligation or where the student is authorizing someone on his/her behalf to collect information.

All transcripts and other documents students submit from other institutions at the time of admission or later are the property of the Mohammad Bin Rashid School of Government, and, as such, are part of the student record that are under the custody of the School.

6.18.2 Records on Academic Integrity and Misconduct Violations

The Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government takes cases relating to academic integrity and misconduct very seriously. The Academic Misconduct Panel, which is a sub-board of the Board of Studies, is responsible for hearing and case of academic misconduct and determining any penalties which should be applied for such cases in accordance with the Academic Integrity and Misconduct Policy (P-ACD-118).

MBRSG will record violations of academic integrity and misconduct will be maintained by the Registrar and kept on the student file in hard copy and/or in electronic copy on the MBRSG Student Information System. The retention of records on academic integrity and misconduct policy violations are governed by the Students Records Policy (P-REG-111). In instances where the student graduates, the paper records on the student file will be destroyed one (1) year after graduation whilst the Electronic copy will be kept on the MBRSG Student Information System.

In instances where the student is dismissed, withdraws, or does not return from leave of absence, the paper records on the student file will be destroyed after two (2) years from the date of dismissal, withdrawal or from the leave of absence expected return date, whilst the Electronic copy will be kept on the MBRSG Student Information System.

Records on Student Academic Integrity and Misconduct Policy (P-ACD-118) violations maintained by the Registrar are subject to regulations stipulated in the Students Record Policy (P-ACD-135) regarding confidentiality of student records. Upon written request to the Registrar, students have the right to inspect their records related to violations of the integrity code.

6.19 Award Documents: Testamurs and Academic Transcripts

The Registrar's Office maintains and updates the academic records of all students who are enrolled at the Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government. The permanent record reflecting the academic grades of each student throughout his/her entire study period at the School is referred to as the academic transcript.

At the end of every semester, after the Exam Board, Progression Board and Award Board have met, the Registrar's Office updates the academic transcripts of the students who were enrolled in Module(s) within a graduate program of study for that semester.

Students will be notified in writing of their academic performance for the relevant academic semester and by accessing the (online) Student Information System.

Those students who are not in good academic standing as per the Student Academic Progress Policy (P-REG-105), will be notified in writing (via hard copy or digitally (e-mail) by the Registrar. For further details on academic standing, please refer to Academic Standing Sections 6.4 and 6.5 of this Academic Catalog

Students may request a copy of his /her unofficial Academic transcript at any time from the Registrar. An Official transcript will be provided once a written (or electronic) request signed by the student has been received. No official transcript may be issued or handed over to any party other than concerned student without his/her signed assent. All official Testamurs and academic transcripts will be signed by the Registrar and the appropriate designee of the school. Such signatures will be registered with the Commission for Academic Accreditation in the UAE. This will ensure that Testamurs and academic transcripts will be recognized outside the School, before being released to the student or to the third party authorized by student to receive the document. A nominal fee applies for additional Transcript requests. The School will only issue complete transcripts, not parts of the student record. An explanation of the School's grading system is included in the Grading Scheme at Section 8.5 within this Academic Catalog.

6.20 Student Publications

Students may contribute to research by submitting their research to the Director of Academic Affairs for approval and potential publication. Students are encouraged to contribute to MBRSG events and research; details of these activities will be posted in the virtual learning environment. Students may not publish using MBRSG logo and name without prior approval from the School. Students may take advantage of social media networking groups which have been set-up by MBRSG as a student community.

6.21 Student Privacy - Rights

The School protects students' rights and privacy and will not release any educational records or any other information personally identifying student without the student's signed dated written permission. However, in circumstances within the extent of UAE federal and local laws, the School may be required to provide student information to the relevant authority. MBRSG will apply with such laws and requests accordingly.

All students have the right to inspect, review and be provided with copies of his/her academic information. Students also have the right to rectify personal and academic information where he/she believes that to be inaccurate.

For further information on students' records, please check with the Registrar and/or refer to the Student Records Policy (P-REG-111).

Section 7 Student Conduct and Academic Integrity

7.1 Expectations of Student Conduct at MBRSG

The Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government (MBRSG) is committed to upholding the tenets of academic integrity, good behavior, and honesty across all of its faculty and student body. This is clearly stipulated in the Academic Integrity and Misconduct Policy (P-ACD-118) which is available, upon request from the Registrar's Office and in the Student Handbook.

Academic integrity is the commitment to behave ethically with honesty, fairness, trust, respect and responsibility in all aspects of your academic work, research or study. These values underlie acceptable conduct and are expected standards of behavior at MBRSG. Academic integrity is expected not only in formal coursework and examination situations, but in all School relationships and interactions connected to the educational process, including the use of School resources and when undertaking research. Faculty and students assume the responsibility of maintaining and furthering these values.

Student's submission of work for academic credit, indicates that the work is the student's own. All outside assistance should be acknowledged, and the student's academic position truthfully reported. In addition, MBRSG students have a right to expect academic integrity from each of their peers. Misunderstanding of appropriate academic integrity or conduct will not be accepted as an excuse for academic misconduct. If a faculty member or student is in doubt about appropriate academic conduct in a particular situation, he or she should consult with the Director of Academic Affairs to avoid the serious charge of academic misconduct.

7.1.1 Communicating with Faculty and Staff

When communicating with faculty or Staff, you are expected to be always honest, you are expected to behave courteously and obey the commands of faculty and staff.

7.2 Types of Academic Misconduct

MBRSG considers breaches of academic integrity and misconduct to include, but are not limited to:

7.2.1 Piracy

The deliberate exploitation of the ideas from others without proper acknowledgement.

7.2.2 Plagiarism

The appropriation of another person's ideas, processes, results, or words without giving appropriate credit. This includes the copying of language, structure, or ideas of another and attributing (explicitly or implicitly) the work to one's own efforts.

7.2.3 Misrepresentation

Any deliberate attempt to represent falsely or unfairly facts or the ideas or work of others, whether or not for personal gain or enhancement.

7.2.3 Facilitating Academic Dishonesty

Assisting another in violating the Academic Integrity and Misconduct Policy (P-ACD-118), such as taking an exam for another student or providing coursework for another student to turn in as his or her own effort.

7.2.5 Fraud

Deliberate deception, which may include the invention, or fabrication, of data. Fraud may also include the engagement of another person to complete or contribute to an assessment or examination in place of the student, whether or not for payment, or accepting such an engagement from another student.

7.2.6 Fabrication

Making up data or results and recording or reporting them, including laboratory or field research results. In the context of student academic integrity, this also includes falsifying academic or university documents and providing false information or testimony in connection with any investigation or hearing under this policy.

7.2.7 Recycling

Recycling is considered as the resubmission of an assignment that is the same, or substantially the same, as work previously submitted for assessment in the same or in a different module of study (except in the case of legitimate resubmission with the approval of the Faculty for purposes of improvement).

7.2.8 Failure to follow Protocols

Failure to follow established protocols (e.g., research, ethics, or examinations, etc.)

- If the failure to follow research protocols results in unreasonable risk or harm to humans, other sentient creatures generally recognised in this context, or the environment, and facilitating of misconduct in research by collusion in, or concealment of, such actions by others.
- Removal or damage – intentional, unauthorised removal of or damage to research-related property of another including apparatus, materials, writings, data, hardware or software or any other substances or devices used in or produced by the conduct of research.
- Failure to follow Examination protocols as per the Examination Conduct and Invigilation Policy (P-ACD-129).

7.2.9 Unauthorized collaboration

Working with others without the specific permission of the instructor on assignments that will be submitted for a grade. This applies to in-class or take-home tests, papers, labs, or homework assignments. Students may not collaborate without faculty authorization.

7.2.10 Collusion

Collusion is the presentation of an assessment as his or her own work, which is in fact the result in whole or in part of unauthorized collaboration with another person or persons. Collusion may involve the cooperation of two or more students in plagiarism or other forms of academic misconduct.

7.2.11 Interference or sabotage

Damaging, removing, or otherwise harming another student's work or University materials and systems to affect the academic performance of others.

7.2.12 Retaliation

Retaliation of any kind against a person who reported or provided information about suspected or alleged misconduct and who has not acted in bad faith.

7.3 Detecting Academic Misconduct – TurnItIn

To detect instances of possible plagiarism and/or collusion; where practicable MBRSG expects all faculty research and student assessments to be submitted via TurnItIn. For students, each Module Handbook will outline which assessments will be required to be submitted via TurnItIn.

MBRSG uses the TurnItIn software tool(s) which identifies text-matching (overlap) between submitted assessments.

These tools are used to assess whether submitted work has acknowledged and cited the work of others correctly and/or completely. It gives an indication as to the extent to which the author has directly cited and/or paraphrased the work of others and to the extent the work submitted represents the independent thoughts and/or original contribution of the author.

Within the Academic Integrity and Misconduct Policy (P-ACD-118), MBRSG has developed a category known as Negligent Plagiarism.

Negligent Plagiarism is the most serious form of plagiarism and refers to recklessly or carelessly presenting another person's work or one's own previously acknowledged work as one's original work without any attempt to acknowledge the source. (i.e., via in-text citation or in the Reference List).

7.4 Detecting Academic Misconduct – Examinations

MBRSG conducts various forms of examinations including online and in-class examinations. Students are responsible for understanding the conditions under which an examination will be held and meeting the requirements as per the Examination Policy (P-ACD-116).

The following actions, albeit not an exhaustive list, represent academic misconduct under examination conditions:

- Taking an examination for another student.
- Bringing into an examination forbidden material such as textbooks, notes, calculators, or computers.
- Communication, whether by speaking or some other means, to other candidates during an examination.
- Attempting to read other student's work during an examination.
- Writing an examination or test paper, or consulting with another person about the examination or test, outside the confines of the examination room without permission.
- Copying from other students during examinations.
- Inappropriate use of electronic devices to access information during examinations.
- Failing to use the appropriate software (i.e., such as Lockdown Browser), as directed, in online examinations, to ensure that students complete exams in a secure browser environment.

Faculty, staff (e.g., invigilators) and/or students upon discovering an alleged violation of academic integrity or misconduct should report the matter to the faculty member in charge of the Module and/or to the Director of Academic Affairs for investigation.

7.5 Penalties for breaching Academic Integrity and Misconduct

Allegations of breaches of academic misconduct and integrity will be referred to the Academic Misconduct Panel for a hearing and a decision. Student violations will be treated seriously and will be documented on the student's permanent record.

Penalties that the Academic Misconduct Panel has at its discretion, based on the severity of the violation of academic integrity or misconduct, may include:

- a formal written warning letter,
- a fail grade (0%) for the assessment (with referral opportunity),
- a fail grade for the Module, (with resit opportunity)
- a period of suspension,
- dismissal
- a graduate award being revoked.

A student or faculty member can only be given one (1) warning for a violation of academic integrity or misconduct. A subsequent violation will result in a dismissal.

7.6 Notification of Penalties for breaches of Academic Integrity and Misconduct

The Academic Misconduct Panel will advise the Chair of the Board of Studies (the Director of Academic Affairs) and the Registrar of the decision regarding allegations of academic misconduct.

The Registrar will notify the student in writing of the findings and, if applicable, the assigned penalty awarded by the Academic Misconduct Panel. Rights of appeal will also be included in the notification.

All documents pertaining to the decision and notification of a breach of academic integrity and misconduct will be kept on the student file in accordance with the Student Records Policy (P-REG-111).

7.7 Appeal of Penalties applied for breaches of Academic Integrity and Misconduct

A student may submit an appeal in relation to decisions made by the Academic Misconduct Panel under the Academic Integrity and Misconduct Policy (P-ACD-118) in accordance with the provisions of the Student Academic Grievance Policy (P-ACD-117). The School Council will decide on appeals lodged in these circumstances.

Section 8 Assessment, Grades and Academic Progression

8.1 Assessment

The Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government Assessment Policy (P-ACD-123) clearly states and establishes the principles on which assessment and grading will be developed and undertaken within all graduate programs of study at MBRSG.

8.1.1 Assessment and Grading Principles

The following principles outline the MBRSG approach to assessment and grading:

- Assessment will be developed at a graduate level that is designed to enable module learning outcomes, program outcomes and graduate attributes to be achieved.
- Assessment and grading in all modules will be criterion-based and aligned to specific learning outcomes including the generic skills, knowledge, and aspects of competence they incorporate.
- Assessment will link to and align with specified learning outcomes at the module level.
- Assessment at MBRSG is used to guide and support student learning, encourage effective study habits and patterns of study.
- Assessment arrangements will ensure that student and staff workloads are considered.
- Assessment criteria and grading rubrics will be published with the details of each assessment task in each Module Handbook.
- Assessment will be balanced to enable timely and useful formative feedback, as well as summative judgments about academic performance.
- Assessment will use a variety of assessment instruments. Assessment will be transparent, fair, equitable, inclusive, objective, and auditable and meet the needs of MBRSG programs.
- Grading is designed to record and report whether students have demonstrated an overall level of performance that signifies successful completion of an assessment task and to allow achievement of the learning outcomes to be recognised and rewarded.
- Assessment practices will ensure that reliable and consistent judgments about student performance are made.
- All summative assessments will be subject to internal moderation, and post application 'double marking' to ensure fairness and equity in the grading process (see Assessment Procedure).
- Examinations will be double marked anonymously to ensure fairness and equity in the grading process.

- Student achievement in individual subjects will be graded in accordance with the MBRSG Grading Scheme Procedure.
- External Examiners will be used to assure the appropriateness, level and quality of assessment and grading processes across all programs of study at MBRSG in accordance with the External Examiner Policy (P-ACD-130).

8.2 Tests and Examination

Exams are used as a summative evaluation tool in some modules. These may occur at the mid-term or at the end of term interval. The format of an exam may require students to give extended, written and applied responses to theories, concepts and/or issues that were covered in a module of study in a specific time under examination conditions in accordance with the Examination Conduct and Invigilation Policy (P-ACD-129).

Information about exams, including the timetable and advice on preparing and revising will be offered prior to the exam and e-tutorials on exam preparation are available on Blackboard.

If you are concerned about your exams, please contact your Lecturer, Academic Advisor or Program Leader.

8.3 Late Submission of Coursework

Assignments that are received after the due date will be subject to grade penalties. Assignment submission deadlines are detailed in the module syllabus. However, MBRSG recognizes that there may be occasions when a student is unable to undertake, complete or hand-in required work due to circumstances beyond his/her control.

MBRSG has introduced a process of mitigating circumstances to assist students who encounter difficulties or circumstances beyond their control; the provisions for which are detailed in the Assessment Deadlines and Mitigating Circumstances Procedure (PRO-REG-101).

8.4 Exam Board

The Exam Board will confirm whether students have met the completion requirements of a Module within a program of study as stipulated per the MBRSG regulations and policies (including the Assessment Policy (P-ACD-123), Module and Academic Credit Point Policy (P-ACD-128) and Grading Scheme Procedure (PRO-ACD-104)) and therefore their eligibility to be awarded credits as part of a program of study offered by MBRSG.

The Exam Board will ensure that the status and/or outcome of all (pending) decisions made regarding Academic Integrity, Mitigating Circumstances and Student Academic Grievance(s) and Student Attendance are recorded and considered before confirming assessment and Module grades and awarding credit points each academic semester.

Results confirmed by the Exam Board will be provided to the Registrar's Office who will inform students, via the Student Information System, of their assessment and final grades for each Module in accordance with the dates specified in the Academic Calendar.

8.5 Grading Scheme

The Grading Scheme adopted by the Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government is detailed in the Grading Scheme Procedure (PRO-ACD-104).

The MBRSG Grading Scheme changed as at the commencement of the Summer Semester (May) 2016 as a result a shift from the American Credit Hours system to the European Credit Accumulation Transfer Scheme (CATS) Credits system.

8.5.1 Grading Scale – All Programs

MBRSG uses the following grading scale(s) as detailed in Table 12:

Table 12: MBRSG Grading Scale – All Programs

Pre-Summer Semester (May) 2016			Post Summer Semester (May) 2016	Post Spring Semester 2017
Master of Public Administration			Master of Public Administration	All Master and Postgraduate Diploma Awards in Innovation Management, Public Policy and Executive Public Administration (English or Arabic)
Marks	Grade	GPA	Description	Description
95 and above	A	4.0	Pass with Distinction A	Pass with Distinction A
90-94.99	A-	3.70
85-89.99	B+	3.30
80-84.99	B	3.00	Pass with Merit
75-79.99	B-	2.70
70-74.99	C+	2.30		B
65-69.99	C	2.00	Pass with Credit	Pass with Merit
60-64.99	F (Fail)	0.00	C	B
50-59.99		0.00	Pass	Pass with Credit
40-49.99		0.00	D Fail (Resit Component)	C Pass
		0.00	E Fail Resit (Module)	D Fail (Resit Component)
0-39.99		0.00	F	F
I (Incomplete)
W (Withdrawn)

8.5.2 Incomplete Grades

All summative assessments including examinations for each Module within a program of study must be completed according to the deadlines as noted in the relevant Module Handbooks and as published in the Academic Calendar (with respect to the Examination period).

In situations where a student has applied for mitigating circumstances and has been granted a referral or deferral assessment, as approved by the Exam Board, a student may need to complete an assessment in the reassessment period, or at another time as specified by the Exam Board, in the following semester.

In such instances, a grade of I (incomplete) will be assigned for the Module by the Exam Board.

Failure to complete the referred or deferred assessment by the due deadline may result in the grade being recorded as F (Fail), based on the discretion of the Exam Board.

Part-Time Students who are studying their Dissertation will normally take two semesters to complete their Dissertation. At the completion of the first semester of the Dissertation, the Exam Board will declare a grade of I (Incomplete). In such circumstances the students overall average grade is not adversely impacted.

8.6 Grading Point Average Information

8.6.1 Grade Point Average

Prior to the commencement of Summer Semester (May) 2016, the DSG and MBRSG grading system provided two grade point averages: the Semester Grade Point Average (SGPA) and the Cumulative Grade Point Average (CGPA). Post Summer Semester 2016 MBRSG changed from the American Credit Hours System to the European Credit Accumulation Transfer Scheme (CATS) Credits system.

MBRSG, post Summer 2016, adopted an Overall Average Grade calculation based on a grade percentage. An Award may only be granted if a student's CGPA is at least 3.0/4.0 (American Credit Hours) or an Overall Average Grade of Pass with Merit or above equivalent (CATS Credits).

8.6.2 Calculating Overall Average Grade

8.6.2.1 Overall Average Grade - Semester

The overall average grade earned in a specific semester is calculated by summing the Final Module Grade Percentage (%) awarded for each Module and dividing this amount by the number of Module taken in the Semester. To be in good academic standing, the calculated overall average grade should be a Pass with Merit or above.

8.6.2.2 Overall Average Grade - Program

The overall average grade earned at a particular time during a graduate program of study is calculated by summing the Final Module Grade Percentage (%) awarded for each Module taken and dividing this amount by the number of Modules taken in the graduate program of study. To be in good academic standing, the calculated overall average grade should be Pass with Merit or above.

8.7 Academic Progress

8.7.1 Progression through a Program of Study

The Student Academic Progress Policy (P-REG-105) ensures that students are given every opportunity and assistance to successfully complete the requirements of their chosen degree program in accordance with the relevant award. The Progression Board reviews student performance, via the application of the Student Academic Progress Policy, to enable corrective action to be implemented in time to rectify and improve a student's academic performance.

Failure to maintain 'Good Academic Standing' will lead a student's academic status to be subject to review. Ultimately, failure to rectify or improve performance (and academic status) can lead to dismissal from the program.

Students should be aware of the minimum and maximum timeframes for completion of a graduate program of study and the required cumulative grade point average to be eligible for an Award. These requirements are specified in the Graduate Completion Policy (P-ACD-134).

8.8 Progression Board

The Progression Board monitors each student's progression towards the successful completion of their degree program on a semesterly basis. The Progression Board checks to ensure that any offer conditions have been satisfied, comment on the likely completion timeframe and that overall grade performance (GPA) is being met.

The Progression Board will make decisions in respect of the Module(s) a student should study in the following semester, whether a student should be placed on academic probation and whether formal academic advising is recommended to improve overall performance in the following semester(s).

Decisions of the Progression Board will be provided to the Registrar's Office who will inform students, in writing and/or on the Student Information System.

8.9 Academic Standing

A student's academic standing depends upon academic performance (grades) during his/her program of study. Students must maintain an overall average grade of (Pass with Merit) or above, under the European Credit Accumulation Transfer Scheme (CATS) Credits system. This is equivalent to a CGPA of 3.0/4.0 using the American Credit Hours system.

In accordance with MBRSG's Student Academic Progress Policy (P-REG-105), a student's academic standing can be classified as follows:

8.9.1 Good Academic Standing

These are students who meet the minimum rate of progress requirements by achieving an overall average grade of at least (Pass with Merit) under the European Credit Accumulation Transfer Scheme (CATS) Credits system in each semester and are deemed to be in good academic standing. A student must be in Good Academic Standing to be eligible to enroll in the Dissertation component of their program of study.

8.9.2 Academic Probation

Section 9 Academic Grievances and Student Appeals

9.1 Academic Grievance

MBRSG recognizes the need to provide a policy for students with academic grievances and appeals during their time of study at the School. The Student Academic Grievance Policy (P-ACD-117) outlines the circumstances in which students may appeal a decision or lodge a grievance.

A student with concerns about a graduate program of study, a specific module, an instructor, an academic decision(s) or other academic issue must first approach the relevant faculty member in an attempt to resolve the issue. If the grievance or issue is not resolved the student should contact the Director of Academic Affairs, who may request additional information or documentation to clarify the specific grievance.

The Director of Academic Affairs will refer the grievance and associated documentation in respect of matters relating to students, faculty, or the institution to the MBRSG Grievance Review Panel for consideration.

The MBRSG Grievance Review Panel shall meet within seven days of the receipt of the grievance and associated documentation being provided to the Director of Academic Affairs. The MBRSG Grievance Review Panel will decide and determine the appropriate action to be taken in relation to the grievance submitted within seven days of receiving formal notification of a grievance by the Director of Academic Affairs.

The MBRSG Grievance Review Panel will inform the Registrar's Office of their decision and the Registrar's Office will then formally notify the student(s) in writing. A copy of which will be maintained on the student file either electronically or in hard copy.

Students are entitled to a fair and objective evaluation of their work as detailed in the MBRSG Assessment Policy (P-ACD-123) An individual student who believes his or her work was subject to a procedural error may appeal the grading decision to the Director of Academic Affairs within five working days of the release of the confirmed grade by the Examination Board. Students may appeal against procedural errors but may not appeal against academic judgment.

9.2 Student Responsibility to Maintain Documentary Evidence

All official MBRSG communications via the student's e-mail address. These e-mail messages are considered official and sufficient notification. Students are responsible to check their (stated) e-mail account and act on messages in a timely manner.

Students must keep their own copies or other records of transactions with MBRSG. Documents to be kept should include registration schedules, forms, grade reports, payment records and course syllabi. Copies of tests, reports or other in-course assessments should also be kept for at least one year following posting of a final grade.

Students may petition for exceptions to academic policies by submitting such requests to the Registrar's Office. Such exception requests will be reviewed by the Director of Academic Affairs, who will grant or deny such petitions consistent with MBRSG School policies, the requirements of the CAA Standards 2019, and the best interests of both the student and the best interests of MBRSG.

The Director of Academic Affairs may refer matters relating to students, faculty, or the institution to the MBRSG School Council for consideration.

Students are entitled to a fair and objective evaluation of their work as shown in the MBRSG Internal Moderation of Assessment Instruments Procedure (PRO-ACD-106). An individual student who believes his or her work was subject to a procedural error may appeal the grading decision to the Director of Academic Affairs within five working days of the release of the confirmed grade by the Examination Board. Students may appeal against procedural errors but may not appeal against academic judgment.

Students may also lodge an appeal, under the Student Academic Grievance Policy (P-ACD-117), based on a decision made by a specific Board or Committee. 11.1 Executive Master of Public Administration (English or Arabic)

11.1.1 Introduction

The introduction of an Executive Master of Public Administration (EMPA), in English or Arabic, program provides students with the opportunity, skills and knowledge to coordinate and implement coherent policy alternatives, to implement successful cost-effective programs. The ‘executive’ element of the proposed EMPA program is primarily designed to educate working executives, managers, and other business leaders in a cohesive learning environment that is designed to fit the variety of different students’ schedules.

The EMPA program requires students to attend blocks of lectures, and then complete a large portion of the work on their own time. Because module schedules are preset at the beginning of the program, the EMPA will not seek to use elective modules in its initial cohorts, however, as the market evolves this may be reconsidered.

The Executive MPA is taught within a truly global context and requires students to complete modules in a step-lock method, synchronously attending modules with the same classmates for the duration of the program.

The delivery of the EMPA, separately, in both Arabic and English supports the UAE government mission to emphasize the importance of the Arabic language. The high level of interdependence among nations necessitates the delivery in English language as a universal language; however, the ability to deliver the EMPA in Arabic brings a competitive advantage to MBRSG and fills a significant gap in the service delivery of such bespoke higher education provision.

The Executive MPA has been designed to meet the needs of currently employed, high-achieving professionals from the public sector; it would be unusual for students with less than 5 years of work experience; and who have demonstrated their leadership potential to be admitted to the program.

11.1.2 Program Mission

The Executive Master of Public Administration (EMPA), in English or Arabic, is specifically tailored to meet the professional challenges and time constraints of midcareer professionals in the public, private and nonprofit sectors.

The program consists of block teaching direct contact sessions held on weekends approximately every four weeks (per Module), as well as directed independent learning (DIL) that takes place between weekend sessions. The EMPA program tackles challenges of governance and management in a unique forum for exchange, learning, and professional development.

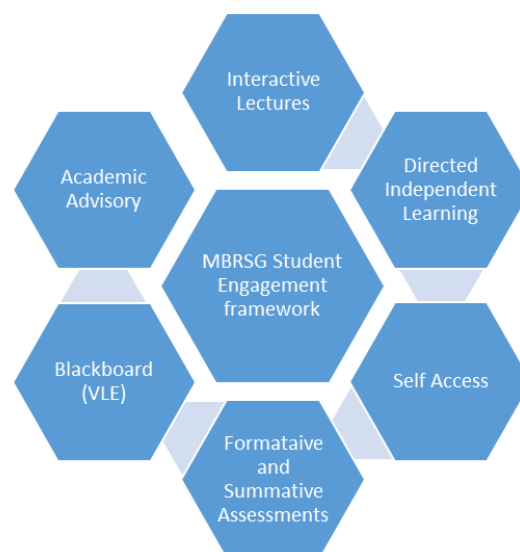

The flexible program can be completed in a full-time mode (three academic semesters) or, in a part-time mode, over a period of two years (four academic semesters) while working.

11.1.3 Teaching and Learning

MBRSG believes that active learning and full student engagement is the most successful pedagogical approach (Figure 6 below). The learning, teaching and assessment approaches used throughout the program will encourage collaborative engagement among students. MBRSG aims to provide students with prompt feedback on their learning as well as reflective opportunities through which they can enhance their learning.

Students will be actively involved in a range of learning, teaching and assessment approaches as part of the program. Interactive lectures, guest lectures, seminars, tutorials, group work, class discussions, directed independent learning, online learning resources via the Virtual Learning Environment (Blackboard), self- access and field trips are some of the learning activities that will add value to the student experience in the EMPA. Such active approaches are intentionally student-centered, foster involvement and engagement in all aspects of teaching and learning. The EMPA program will require active participation in learning activities and engagement with fellow students both individually and collaboratively.

In class learning will be supported by technology. Increasingly, lecturers will be using existing and emerging learning technologies to engage students in Virtual Learning activities. This will be facilitated using a variety of media and online tools such as podcasts, wikis, etc. At MBRSG the Virtual Learning Environment (VLE) is facilitated through Blackboard which will allow students to interact via Blackboard Collaborate (an online- web conferencing feature), flexible access to a diverse range of online resources, quizzes, discussion forums, learning materials and collaborative tools with which you can interact and learn with your peers.

The delivery of each module is designed to allow students to actively engage with the material and critically reflect on the delivered content. Each taught Module, excluding the Dissertation, comprises 45 hours of face-to-face teaching. Classes are delivered across three staggered weekend blocks, which allow time for reflection between delivery sessions. Each day comprises of seven hours direct contact. One further face to face, 3-hour, Project Block Learning Workshop is included, for each Module, each semester. Following the intensive teaching sessions, the students are assigned Directed Independent Learning (DIL) tasks which will reinforce and extend the taught content. Students are also expected to include self -access study time for critical analysis and reflection on content. For the duration of the program students will be working on assignments that measures their applied and analytical skills.

Students will receive detailed Module Handbooks each semester with information on teaching and learning strategies, assessment methods and reading materials. The academic faculty, the Library, the IT Office, and the Student Affairs teams will provide any required support to students studying at MBRSG.

11.1.4 Special Features of the Teaching and Learning Experience

The EMPA adopts the following features to enhance the teaching and learning experience:

- Professional Development sessions running throughout the year which are supported by MBRSG Executive Education
- Executive MPA Networking Events which are established through MBRSG Business Development.
- MENA specific case analysis

What makes the MBRSG EMPA distinctive is the concept of learning through action, which shapes the entire program design, and its focus on both personal development and government development. The proposed program will offer the opportunity for a study visit for students that will reinforce classroom teaching by enabling MBRSG students to learn more about the subject of Global Governance and Administration by encouraging intercultural competency and understanding, and developing knowledge of the international community, and a sense of shared understanding within the field.

11.1.5 Program Content

The six (6) Executive Master of Public Administration (EMPA), core modules have each been designed to extend the students' knowledge of the variety of public administration functions, processes, and strategies, in a context that will engage new ideas and concepts. The addition of an elective module 'Global Governance' (EMPA 1507) will enable Executive MPA students to complete their studies entirely within the UAE or to participate in an enhanced international context.

Students wishing to study EMPA1507 or EMPA1508 can do so as an alternative to EMPA 1506. The Executive MPA modules will challenge existing practices, and the student's personal management style. The EMPA proposes to enhance strategic thinking skills and the capacity to reflect critically on what works, and why.

Within the Executive MPA, students will experience fresh perspectives from their fellow students, faculty member and guest lecturers, as well as gaining an international perspective on public sector issues. The debate and discussion, both in the classroom and in subsequent online debate, will provide a powerful test-bed for ideas and potentially also a valuable source of professional advice.

The Executive MPA has synergies with both the UAE National and Dubai Government visions and plans where priority areas are encouraged to be engaged in Government Excellence.

11.1.6 Program Objectives and Outcomes

Students successfully completing the Executive Master of Public Administration (EMPA), in English, or Arabic program will be able to:

During these sessions, faculty members will guide you through essential knowledge and skills to enhance your progression through the programs.

We propose that induction will answer many of the questions that students may have about what being a postgraduate student at MBRSG. The Orientation Session will be delivered the weekend prior to the commencement of the first semester of study. All new postgraduate students are required to attend.

In support of students at the commencement of their graduate studies or at what may be a return to an academic environment after a period away from higher education, MBRSG requires that all new students admitted to a graduate program attend the Orientation Session

During these sessions, faculty members will guide you through essential knowledge and skills to enhance your progression through the programs. The Orientation Session will answer many of the questions that students may have about what being a postgraduate student at MBRSG.

11.1.12.1 Executive Master of Public Administration (EMPA) – English or Arabic

Developing an effective leadership role is not limited to policy formulation and implementation. It extends to innovation as well. In addition, policy makers face tremendous challenges and pressures in dealing with high paced changing environment which requires continuous learning. To cope with these challenges, policy makers must acquire new skills that enable them to apply innovation and leadership to their policy formulation. In addition, policy makers must blend theory with application to tackle the complex issues they face. The design of the EMPA at MBRSG recognizes the fundamental inter-play between public policy analysis and leadership with the following core and elective module(s).

Students admitted to the Executive Master of Public Administration (English or Arabic) graduate program of study at MBRSG, will study the prescribed study plan as follows in Table 13 below:

Such decisions must be determined, on a case by case, basis, after considering the extraordinary and/or unforeseen circumstances of the student seeking the revised study plan permission.

11.1.12.5 Dissertation

The research dissertation is a very important part of a student's Master's degree. It is an opportunity for the student to acquire and apply transferable researching and academic writing skills. It is the part of the program where students can apply the analytical and problem-solving techniques, they have acquired during their studies to explore a specialist interest in greater depth. Although demanding, students often find the dissertation one of the most rewarding aspects of their Master's experience.

The requirements to undertake and complete the Dissertation Module within the Executive Master of Public Administration (English or Arabic) program are clearly specified in the Dissertation Handbook. Students undertaking the Dissertation will prepare and successfully defend their Dissertation presenting results from their independent research performed under the direct supervision of a School faculty member.

The Dissertation Module Handbook details a series of stages that must be completed to successfully complete the Dissertation requirements of the EMPA (English or Arabic) program.

Students commencing their dissertations will initially meet to attend an induction session, academic skills workshops and a proposal writing workshop.

Students will then engage with faculty and discuss their individual topics.

The submission of proposals will be in week 3 and students will defend their proposals at the end of that week.

They will be assigned and meet with their supervisor and arrange supervisory meetings for the remainder of the semester; the recommended minimum is four meetings per semester as detailed in the dissertation handbook.

For full-time students a progress report will be due in weeks 3 & 7; the submission of the dissertation is in week 15 and the defense in weeks 16 or 17.

Part-time students a progress report will be due in weeks 3, 15, 21 & 26; the submission of the dissertation is in week 31 and the defense in weeks 32-34.

Public finance issues are central to economic and political landscapes worldwide, as one of the primary functions of government is to generate resources from its people, and in return to spend the money to improve their lives. However, while the concept of “money from the people, for the people” is quite simple conceptually, there is little agreement on how best to raise and spend public funds in practice.

The module covers: the role and size of the public sector, including the rationale for public sector interventions such as market failure and distributional concerns; key factors determining a nation's fiscal architecture; public resource mobilization via user charges and taxation, including the economics of taxation, taxation of income (personal and corporate income tax), wealth (property tax), and consumption (sales, excise, and value added taxes), tax incentives, tax compliance and enforcement, and tax reform; public expenditure policy, including assessment of government social protection programs, megaprojects, public sector efficiency and effectiveness, and the role of the private sector in the production and provision of public goods and services; fiscal balance and deficit financing; and fiscal decentralization and intergovernmental fiscal relations.

The program will equip students to understand, explain and practice governance and diplomacy in the contemporary global era. Inter-Governmental Organizations provide important channels of communication between states and mechanisms for galvanizing international action on issues of global concern. They are also important actors in global governance.

The module will include a study visit for students that will reinforce classroom teaching by enabling MBRSG students to learn more about the subject of Global Governance encouraging intercultural competency and understanding, and developing knowledge of the international community, and a sense of global understanding within the field.

The module will address three key 'gaps' that are referred to in global governance discussions:

1. The jurisdictional gap, between the increasing need for global governance in many areas - such as health - and the lack of an authority with the power, or jurisdiction, to act.
2. The incentive gap, between the need for international cooperation and the motivation to undertake it. The incentive gap is said to be closing as globalization provides increasing impetus for countries to cooperate. However, there are concerns that, as a Country lags further behind economically, its influence on global governance processes will diminish.
3. The participation gap, which refers to the fact that international cooperation, remains primarily the affair of governments, leaving civil society groups on the fringes of policy-making. On the other hand, globalization of communication is facilitating the development of global civil society movements.

The Dissertation is designed to enable MBRSG Master’s candidates to integrate, apply and extend the knowledge and skills they have acquired throughout their module work. The subject matter for the dissertation should also be based upon skills and concepts acquired during the taught part of the program. However, to satisfy the requirements for a Masters level dissertation, it will be necessary for the candidate to develop, enhance and apply these concepts through demonstration of independent research skills beyond the level achieved in prior module-work. To this end, candidates will conduct substantive original research on a public administration, public management, or contemporary policy issue of importance to the region. The outcome will be the development and presentation of the research results and recommendations.

11.2 Master in Innovation Management

11.2.1 Introduction

The Master in Innovation Management (MIM) program has been developed in such a way as to provide students with the practical skills, mental models, and theoretical background to attain or undertake a professional role in their organization.

Teaching on the MIM program will use a pedagogical approach that enables students to reflect on innovation management activities in a real-world context. It will provide an essential overview of the key concepts of innovation management, by utilizing both theoretical and practical perspectives on the current realities of innovation management techniques in a variety of contemporary organizational settings.

This program has been developed for current and future managers and leaders in national and international public and private sector organisations. It is particularly relevant in the current climate of governance and Government and will be of interest to those who want to keep ahead of these activities.

11.2.2 Program Mission

The MIM program is designed specifically for students wishing to develop their skills and understanding of the management activities undertaken within the context of the evolving and complex world of innovation management. Primarily the student cohort will be individual students selected and supported by Dubai Government as part of the Government training and development initiatives. The MIM will support the UAE Innovation Strategy, as it has been designed to help students improve their ability to analyses and solve problems in the context of contemporary innovation management scenarios.

This program is ideal for students seeking a career where innovation, entrepreneurship and creativity are defining key features. These roles can be found in public and private sector organisations, in small to medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) and in start-up businesses.

11.2.3 Teaching and Learning

MBRSG believes that active learning and full student engagement is the most successful pedagogical approach (Figure 7). The learning, teaching and assessment approaches used throughout the program will encourage collaborative engagement among students. MBRSG aims to provide students with prompt feedback on their learning as well as reflective opportunities through which they can enhance their learning.

Students will be actively involved in a range of learning, teaching and assessment approaches as part of the program. Interactive lectures, guest lectures, seminars, tutorials, group work, class discussions, directed independent learning, online learning resources via the Virtual Learning Environment (Blackboard), self- access and field trips are some of the learning activities that will add value to the student experience in the MIM. Such active approaches are intentionally student-centered, foster involvement and engagement in all aspects of teaching and learning. The MIM program will require active participation in learning activities and engagement with fellow students both individually and collaboratively.

In class learning will be supported by technology. Increasingly, lecturers will be using existing and emerging learning technologies to engage students in Virtual Learning activities. This will be facilitated using a variety of media and online tools such as podcasts, wikis, etc. At MBRSG the Virtual Learning Environment (VLE) is facilitated through Blackboard which will allow students flexible access to a diverse range of online resources, quizzes, discussion forums, learning materials and collaborative tools with which you can interact and learn with your peers.

The delivery of each module is designed to allow students to actively engage with the material and critically reflect on the delivered content. Modules are delivered over staggered weekends, which allow time for reflection between delivery sessions. Each day comprises of a minimum of seven hours direct contact.

Following the intensive teaching sessions, the students are assigned Directed Independent Learning (DIL) tasks which will reinforce and extend the taught content. Students are also expected to include self-access study time for critical analysis and reflection on content, before resuming for the following teaching block. For the duration of the program students will be working on assignments that measures their applied and analytical skills.

Students will receive detailed module handbooks each year with information on teaching and learning strategies, assessment methods and reading materials. The academic faculty, the Library, the IT Office, and the Student Affairs teams will provide any required support to students studying at MBRSG.

11.2.4 Special Features of the Teaching and Learning Experience

- Block delivery of modules

11.2.7 Admission Requirements

No additional admission requirements are required for entry into the Master in Innovation Management program to those stated in the general admission requirements detailed in the Graduate Admissions Criteria Policy (P-REG-101) and at Section 4.3.4.1.1 (Full Admission) and Section 4.3.4.2.1 (Conditional Admission) in this Graduate Academic Catalog above.

11.2.8 Proficiency Requirements

Prior to enrolling in a Master in Innovation Management (MIM) program students must demonstrate proficiency in (i) English Language (as per Admission Requirements) and (ii) basic statistics and research methods. The basic statistics and research methods requirements can be met by passing an undergraduate university level subject in statistics and/or research methods. All New Students admitted to the MIM program will also be required to take the Foundation Course for Research Methods in Public Policy (ASM001) during their first semester of academic study.

11.2.9 Orientation Session

The aim of the MBRSG Orientation Session is to introduce students to the range of services that are available to postgraduate students, as well as to provide them with essential information about registration and enrollment. It is also an opportunity for students to get acquainted with each other. During these sessions, faculty members will guide you through essential knowledge and skills to enhance your progression through the programs.

We propose that induction will answer many of the questions that students may have about what being a postgraduate student at MBRSG. The Orientation Session will be delivered the weekend prior to the commencement of the first semester of study. All new postgraduate students are required to attend.

In support of students at the commencement of their graduate studies or at what may be a return to an academic environment after a period away from higher education, MBRSG requires that all new students admitted to a graduate program attend the Orientation Session

During these sessions, faculty members will guide you through essential knowledge and skills to enhance your progression through the programs. The Orientation Session will answer many of the questions that students may have about what being a postgraduate student at MBRSG.

11.2.9.1 Orientation Sessions 2023/2024 Academic Year

11.2.12.3 Elective Modules

No Elective Modules currently exist in the Master in Innovation Management (MIM) degree program as from the commencement of the 2023/2024 academic year.

11.2.12.4 Pre-Requisite and/or Co-Requisite Modules

The Master in Innovation Management degree program has specific co-requisite Modules.

- *MIM 711 Frontiers of Innovation and MIM 712 Public Sector Innovation will generally be studied together (part-time students take 2 subjects per semester) and we have hence assigned them as co-requisites.

All Modules MIM711-MIM716 must be successfully completed, and an overall average grade of Pass with Merit or above achieved, prior to progression to the Dissertation Module. This will be confirmed by the Progression Board.

11.2.12.5 Dissertation

The research dissertation is a very important part of a student's Master's degree. It is an opportunity for the student to acquire and apply transferable researching and academic writing skills. It is the part of the program where students can apply the analytical and problem-solving techniques, they have acquired during their studies to explore a specialist interest in greater depth. Although demanding, students often find the dissertation one of the most rewarding aspects of their Master's experience.

The requirements to undertake and complete the Dissertation Module within the Master in Innovation Management program are clearly specified in the Dissertation Handbook.

Students undertaking the Dissertation will prepare and successfully defend their Dissertation presenting results from their independent research performed under the direct supervision of a School faculty member.

The Dissertation Module Handbook details a series of stages that must be completed in order to successfully complete the Dissertation requirements of the MIM program.

Students commencing their dissertations will initially meet to attend an induction session, academic skills workshops and a proposal writing workshop. Students will then engage with faculty and discuss their individual topics.

The submission of proposals will be in week 3 and students will defend their proposals at the end of that week.

They will be assigned and meet with their supervisor and arrange supervisory meetings for the remainder of the semester; the recommended minimum is four meetings per semester as detailed in the dissertation handbook.

For full-time students a progress report will be due in weeks 3 & 7; the submission of the dissertation is in week 15 and the defense in weeks 16 or 17.

Part-time students a progress report will be due in weeks 3, 15, 21 & 26; the submission of the dissertation is in week 31 and the defense in weeks 32-34.

11.2.12.7 Progression and Academic Standing

In accordance with the Student Academic Progression Policy (P-REG-105), students studying in the Master in Innovation Management (MIM) program must maintain a ‘Good Academic Standing’ to progress through their program of study to successfully meet the graduation completion requirements.

Student’s studying in the MIM program must maintain an overall average grade of Pass with Merit, or above, under the European Credit Accumulation Transfer Scheme (CATS) Credits system, failure to do so will adversely impact a student’s progression and may lead to a period of Academic Probation or ultimately dismissal from the program should academic performance fail to improve.

11.2.12.7 Program Duration

The minimum and maximum timeframes for completion of the Master in Innovation Management (MIM) degree program are specified in the Graduate Completion Policy (P-ACD-134) and are summarised in the Table 20 below:

Table 20: Minimum and Maximum Program Duration Timeframes

Study Mode	Minimum completion period	Maximum completion period
Full-time	12 months (normally 3 Academic Semesters)	36 months (6 Academic Semesters)
Part-time	18 months	60 months (10 Academic Semesters)

11.2.12 MIM Program Study Plan

The study plan for full and part time students in the MIM program are detailed in Tables 21A – 21G below. This provides students with an indicative pathway on their academic journey throughout their studies. The individual study plans will be determined and reviewed at the start of each academic semester, in consultation with your academic advisor, depending upon factors such as your academic and personal circumstances, your previous performance, academic probation and/or progression restrictions and the academic timetable for the relevant semester.

11.2.14 Delivery Mode

Each taught Master in Innovation (MIM) module, excluding the Dissertation, comprises 45 hours of “face to face” teaching on campus. Classes are delivered across staggered weekend blocks, which allow time for reflection between delivery sessions. Each day comprises of seven hours direct contact. One further “face to face”, 3-hour, Project Block Learning Workshop is included, for each Module, each semester. Following the intensive teaching sessions, the students are assigned Directed Independent Learning (DIL) tasks which will reinforce and extend the taught content. Students are also expected to include self-access study time for critical analysis and reflection on content. For the duration of the program students will be working on assignments that measures their applied and analytical skills.

11.2.15 Academic Advisory

In accordance with the MBRSG Student Advisement Policy (P-SA-103), early in the first semester of enrolment in the Master in Innovation Management (MIM). Program, each student is allocated an academic advisor who is a member of faculty. Faculty mentors advise and council students on a variety of matters, the majority on a walk-in basis. Faculty mentors may discuss special circumstances and personal issues affecting their students and offer guidance. Students are expected to meet with their academic advisor a minimum of two times per semester.

For further information on academic advising at the Mohammad Bin Rashid School of Government; please refer to the Student Advisement Policy (P-SA-103), available from the Registrar’s Office and/or Section 6.17 of this Catalog regarding Academic Advisors.

Their daily jobs will involve supporting development teams when new products are being developed, and they devise and initiate new products and services themselves, becoming new business developers. They also act as consultants to small and medium-sized enterprises, advising on organizing businesses for innovation.

11.2.18 Graduate Module Descriptions: Master in Innovation Management

11.2.18.1 MIM711: Frontiers of Innovation (20 CATS Credits)

Organizations that are consistently successful at managing innovation outperform their peers in terms of growth, financial performance, and employment. The broader social benefits of innovation are even greater. However, as this course will demonstrate, innovation is not easy to develop within any organization and requires an approach that is quite different from that offered by standard management tools. The strategic management of innovation requires more than just adding it to the functions of an organization. Instead, it needs an integrated approach that deals with interactions between changes in technology, organizations, and markets. This course will explore the different elements that develop and sustain innovation within various organizations and, given the strategic imperative within the UAE to develop a more innovative economy, will also explore the importance of innovation within a national context. It will therefore provide learners with opportunities to explore experiences of innovation and entrepreneurship in action and reflect, in a structured manner, on these experiences and the lessons that emerge from them. It will also introduce concepts that provide the basis for understanding innovation, how it can be managed, and enable the student to experiment with these conceptual models to help make sense of managing innovation.

This module will introduce you to the basic concepts and terminology of innovation that provide for a common foundation of the subject that will help you interact with other innovation experts. You will learn theoretical frameworks and develop the necessary skills to implement them successfully by analyzing information, managing expectations, learning experimentation to test your ideas and thus create robust innovation strategies. You should be able to recommend, monitor and manage innovation within your organizations. Given the strategic imperative within the UAE to develop a more innovative economy and UAE's vision to be a leader in the international context, this course will also explore the importance of innovation within a national and international context. You will also get opportunities to explore experiences of innovation and entrepreneurship in action and reflect in a structured manner on these experiences and the lessons that emerge from them.

11.2.18.2 MIM712: Public Sector Innovation and Foresight (20 CATS Credits)

Public sector innovation - where new ideas create value for society. In recent years, there has been increasingly more concerted efforts to develop a systematic approach to creating innovative solutions to address societal challenges as well as understand potential future changes.

This Module will examine key issues in terms of public sector innovation as well as horizon scanning, which, because of changing political agendas and a desire for action during the last few decades, has led to continuous organizational change becoming common in many parts of the public sector.

This trend has accelerated after the last global economic and financial crises, as governments seek to understand potential future scenarios, and reform, restructure and reorganize their public sector activities to deliver more efficient and effective services. In addition, citizens' expectations of higher value service innovations are increasing despite fiscal pressures, especially in terms of greater choice and quality.

Other important issues such as demographics, technology, and climate change. Some would argue that many public sector organizations are not up to the job of developing and implementing solutions to deal with these challenges. Many public servants focus too much on short-term needs of politicians; are too bureaucratic and hierarchical to deal with change; have an aversion to failure that restricts new ideas; do not place citizens at the heart of their policymaking; cannot scale new solutions sufficiently; and have few formal methods for promoting innovation.

11.2.18.3 MIM713: Service Innovation (20 CATS Credits)

Public value is heavily dependent on the services employed as a method of delivery. Very often these are services where the user has no choice, which makes them critical to a government's success and international competitiveness. With the service sector creating most of the wealth and employment within developed and emerging economies, ensuring that the sector continues to innovate presents several challenges. These challenges are not only about the design and development of the service innovation, its delivery, and its impact measurement. This course will not only examine some of the key issues from academic research and management practice on services innovation but will enable the learner to build the skills and capabilities necessary to better design services, especially in new ways in which service innovation takes place. The pedagogical method we use is that of design thinking for problem solving and this is done through a series of lectures and workshops.

The service sector creates most of the wealth and employment within developed and emerging economies. This fact alone ensures that the need to innovate in this sector maybe critical for ongoing competitiveness of the country. For citizens, often the first stage of interaction with the government is the services they experience. Service innovation begins with a customer centric process.

We will use design-thinking in this course and workshop pedagogical model to understand service strategy design for complex problems at both organizational levels and at the national level. This course will examine some of the key issues from academic research (like behavioral insights) and management practice on services innovation which will enable the learner to build the skills and capabilities necessary to better design services, leading to greater customer satisfaction.

Service innovation is needed also at the supra-country level. The global goals which are wicked problems need a collaborative global perspective - across countries, across sectors, across both private and public organizations if we are to achieve SDGs like zero poverty and zero hunger by 2030. For example, one study states there is enough food to feed every single individual, but we may need to redesign processes in our supply chain and change regulations.

11.2.18.4 MIM714: Microeconomics of Competitiveness (20 CATS Credits)

The module is concerned with the determinants of competitiveness and economic development viewed from a bottom up, microeconomic perspective. While sound macroeconomic policies, stable legal and political systems, and the accumulation of factors of production affect the potential for competitiveness, wealth is created at the microeconomic level. The strategies of firms, the vitality of clusters, and quality of the business environment in which competition takes place are what ultimately determines a nation's or region's productivity and wealth. The content covers both developing and advanced economies. The focus is on emerging, transitioning, and advanced countries where microeconomic agendas are critical to sustained success. Furthermore, the module addresses competitiveness at the level of nations, states or cities within nations, clusters, and groups of neighboring countries. A major theme of the course is that competitiveness and economic development are affected by policies at all these levels.

The module is not only concerned with government policy, but also with the roles of business, universities, and other institutions in competitiveness. In modern international competition, the roles of the constituencies have shifted and expanded, and the traditional separation between them works against successful economic development. Also, the ability to mount and sustain a competitiveness strategy for a nation or region is a daunting challenge. The course explores not only theory and policy, but also the nature of the organizational structure and institutions for sustained improvements in competitiveness. In addition to both macro and micro policy choices, the course underlines the role of history, i.e., the legacy of nations (such as language, culture and general institutions), and geography, i.e. the regional circumstances (such as the level of development among neighboring nations and the intensity in regional interaction).

11.2.18.5 MIM715: Research Methods (20 CATS Credits)

This Module is designed to give students an understanding of the qualitative and quantitative research methods needed by public administrators. Course topics include research design (this includes defining research problems, formulating research questions, and reviewing literature), research strategy, methods and data collection tools. Students will be introduced to a wide range of qualitative tools such as case studies, grounded theory, and action research as well as quantitative tools moving from descriptive statistics to regression analysis.

The Module will enhance students' skill in evaluating published research and learn how to use research methods in their own research, to grasp and analyses issues related to public administration and public policy. They will learn to formulate research questions, design surveys, systematically conduct research and operationalize variables.

11.2.18.6 MIM716: Strategic Management and Leadership (20 CATS Credits)

This module facilitates students' understanding of the process of strategic thinking, planning, and implementation, to facilitate a culture of innovation in government organizations. The relationships between organizational resources, goals, objectives and means will be fully considered to find out how public organizations deploy these resources to achieve their visions and missions, and to advance innovative public services. The role of leadership in defining organizational processes, goals, objectives and shaping the overall strategic orientation of the organization will be discussed to highlight how dynamic interactions between different organizational levels and teams could achieve innovation.

The module also addresses the difficulty of adopting strategic management in public sector innovation and considers how to deal with the problems of implementation of innovative strategies. A case study approach will be adopted to link theory with practice and help students apply their knowledge in the UAE and the MENA region.

11.2.18.7 MIM901: Dissertation (60 CATS Credits)

The Dissertation in Innovation Management is designed to enable MBRSG's Master candidates to integrate, apply and extend the knowledge and skills they have acquired throughout their course work. The subject matter for the dissertation should be based on skills and concepts acquired during the taught part of the program.

To satisfy the requirements for a Masters level dissertation, it will be necessary for the candidate to develop, enhance and apply these concepts through demonstration of independent research skills beyond the level achieved in prior coursework. To this end, candidates will conduct substantive original research on a strategic management, innovation management or service innovation issue of importance to the region. The outcome will be the development and presentation of the research results and recommendations that can inform innovation management in the UAE and beyond.

11.3.12.5 Dissertation

The research dissertation is a very important part of a student's Master's degree. It is an opportunity for the student to acquire and apply transferable researching and academic writing skills. It is the part of the program where students can apply the analytical and problem-solving techniques, they have acquired during their studies to explore a specialist interest in greater depth. Although demanding, students often find the dissertation one of the most rewarding aspects of their Master's experience.

The requirements to undertake and complete the Dissertation Module within the Master of Public Administration program are clearly specified in the Dissertation Handbook.

Students undertaking the Dissertation will prepare and successfully defend their Dissertation presenting results from their independent research performed under the direct supervision of a School faculty member.

The Dissertation Module Handbook details a series of stages that must be completed in order to successfully complete the Dissertation requirements of the MPA program.

Students commencing their dissertations will initially meet to attend an induction session, academic skills workshops and a proposal writing workshop. Students will then engage with faculty and discuss their individual topics.

The submission of proposals will be in week 3 and students will defend their proposals at the end of that week.

They will be assigned and meet with their supervisor and arrange supervisory meetings for the remainder of the semester; the recommended minimum is four meetings per semester as detailed in the dissertation handbook.

For full-time students a progress report will be due in weeks 3 & 7; the submission of the dissertation is in week 15 and the defense in weeks 16 or 17.

Part-time students a progress report will be due in weeks 3, 15, 21 & 26; the submission of the dissertation is in week 31 and the defense in weeks 32-34.

11.3.17 Graduate Module Descriptions: Master of Public Administration (MPA) Program

11.3.17.1 MPA501 Public Administration and Governance (20 CATS Credits)

This module introduces students to the broad issues of Public Administration and Governance in comparative perspective on a global, regional and national level. The opening set of themes and topics delivered through this module prepares students for other modules in the MPA. It explores evolving administrative theories and the major shifts in administrative practice and processes, underlining the importance of the context in which they operate. It also develops a critical awareness of the approaches of theoretical and practical understanding of the impact of globalization on governance.

The module introduces the challenges of governance reform as well as some of the key issues confronting public sector management such as globalization, public value, leadership, citizen engagement, ethics, smart government and innovation.

11.3.17.2 MPA502 Public Policy Analysis (20 CATS Credits)

The Module examines the themes associated with the governance and public policy, from the role of the government, its organization and management, to the purpose, design and delivery of public services.

This Module introduces students to the analytical skills and tools available for analyzing public policy. The Module examines the themes associated with the governance and public policy, from the role of the government, its organization and management, to the purpose, design and delivery of public services.

The course explores the different theoretical traditions underpinning policy analysis and emphasizes the importance of using such frameworks for analyzing policy-making in the UAE and the wider MENA region.

The Module's focal aim is to teach various analytical approaches and techniques that may be used throughout the policy-making cycle, be it during the agenda setting, policy formulation, options generation, implementation or evaluation stage. In an interactive setting, students will examine relevant policy case studies from real life and utilize their analytical intelligence to evaluate the effect and impact of government interventions in different contexts.

11.3.17.3 MPA503 Public Sector Finance (20 CATS Credits)

This Module introduces public financial management and is intended to give students a working knowledge of the key concepts, theories, and structures of fiscal administration. It explores the sources of public funds and mechanisms used to collect them as well as the impact of decisions about how government raises revenue. We develop understanding of public sector budgeting and other methods for financial management and control using an exploration of contemporary public finance issues. Also explored are the political, economic, historical, institutional, and cultural dynamics that influence public finance decisions in the context of the Gulf region. This Module requires students to develop a hands-on familiarity with financial management techniques using practical exercises in budgeting, cost-benefit analysis, project evaluation and proposal preparation.

11.3.17.4 MPA504 Organisational Behavior and Leadership in the Public Sector (20 CATS Credits)

In this Module students will be introduced to theories of organizational behavior and culture before considering how these principles influence the practice of administrative leadership in public sector organizations. The way in which administrative leaders undertake their duties influences organizational performance and, in turn, the ability of employees to achieve organizational goals and objectives. Conversely, public sector leaders are themselves influenced by norms, values and other cultural considerations prevalent in the organization. Thus, this course considers the interrelationship between organizational behavior and leadership in government. Administrative leadership theories and models are examined to underline the characteristics of effective public leaders and to distinguish the notion of public leadership from other similar concepts.

The impact of organizational culture on leadership styles and dynamics will be studied to determine how different organizational norms, attitudes, and values reflect in the practice of leadership in public organizations.

Class discussions and activities will focus on the analysis of administrative leadership and organizational culture in the context of the UAE, as well as comparing this experience with leadership in other nations. Case studies will help students understand organizational cultures in public organizations and apply best practices, in addition to underscoring the pitfalls of ineffective administrative leadership.

11.3.17.5 MPA505 Research Methods (20 CATS Credits)

This Module will help you understand the process of research and develop quantitative and qualitative analytical tools which will help you conduct research in your field of interest. This Module is designed to give students an understanding of the qualitative and quantitative research methods needed for public policy analysis. Module topics include research design (this includes defining research problems, formulating research questions and reviewing literature), research strategy, methods and data collection tools. Students will be introduced to a wide range of qualitative tools such as case studies, grounded theory and action research, as well as quantitative tools such as descriptive statistics and regression analysis.

The Module will enhance students' skills in evaluating published research and teach them how to use different research methods in their own studies to grasp and analyze issues related to public administration including the evaluation of policy alternatives. They will learn to formulate research questions, design surveys, systematically conduct research and operationalize variables. It also prepares students for the Dissertation (MPA 901) and research projects in other courses.

11.3.17.6 MPA506 Economic Foundations of Policy Analysis (20 CATS Credits)

This Module will prepare students for more advanced courses in public policy and enable them to apply economic tools to analyze questions in public administration and policy. This Module examines the economic foundations of policy analysis and fiscal administration by introducing basic microeconomic principles and tools required to understand the role of government in the economy. It explores the rationale for government intervention, the goals of intervention (achieving allocative efficiency, redistribution, and stabilization), and the prospect of government failure in making such interventions succeed.

More specifically, the Module provides an overview of the assumptions of perfect competition and considers a variety of situations in which the ideal of a 'perfect market' breaks down, including the cases of public goods, externalities, market power, natural monopolies and asymmetric information. It uses actual policy problems to demonstrate applications of the theoretical framework to areas of education, health, environment, social security and others. It also provides an overview of regulatory economics and reviews the recent research on implications of behavioral economics for public policy making.

11.3.17.7 MPA901 Dissertation (60 CATS Credits)

The Dissertation in Public Administration is designed to enable MBRSG's Master candidates to integrate, apply and extend the knowledge and skills they have acquired throughout their Module work. The subject matter for the dissertation should also be based upon skills and concepts acquired during the taught part of the program. However, to satisfy the requirements for a Masters level dissertation, the candidate will need to develop, enhance, and apply these concepts through demonstrating independent research skills beyond the level achieved in prior coursework.

To this end, candidates will conduct substantive original research on a public administration issue of importance to the region or one which has the potential to impact on the region. The outcome will be the development and presentation of the research results and recommendations. Emphasis will be placed on developing, planning, analytical and evaluation skills and the choice and utilization of research methods.

By the end of the dissertation, students will have demonstrated their ability to conduct applied research, engaging the capacities and knowledge gained during the program. In essence, the dissertation will also serve as a program-level assessment of student performance.

11.4 Master in Public Policy Degree Programs

11.4.1 Master in Public Policy Degree Program

MBRSG has received initial accreditation from the Commission for Academic Accreditation under the auspices of the Ministry of Education in the United Arab Emirates to offer the Master in Public Policy (MPP) degree program.

11.4.2 Program Overview

“The purpose of government is to serve the people, the aim of public policy and administration is to serve society in relation to the role of government policies, procedures, systems and laws is to serve human beings”.

The Master in Public Policy (MPP) program is designed to provide education which complies with international norms, for professionals to develop further as leaders in a variety of roles, including public policy analysis and planning, public management and services, research institutes, and government-orientated positions within the private sector and the non-profit organizations.

The MPP’s scope includes providing students with the theoretical and practical knowledge to develop and apply the analytical tools necessary for high quality policy analysis and strategic development. This includes aspects of design, advocacy and evaluation of public policies and strategies. It will contribute to growth in program management capabilities within a dynamic economic and global context. As a student, you will receive a rich combination of theory through interactive lectures, group projects, coursework and practical experience, with hands-on opportunities offered both inside and outside of the classroom.

You will be part of a cohort of in-service public service employees who bring a rich experience which adds value to the peer interaction and collaboration in the classroom. MPP graduates go on to work for a wide range of governmental, non-profit, and private organizations, where they serve as managers, executives, and policy analysts, among various other positions.

The MPP Program is also aligned to the seven key strategic objectives of the UAE National Innovation Strategy (NIS), which are:

- 1 Renewable Energy
- 2 Transportation
- 3 Education
- 4 Health
- 5 Technology
- 6 Water
- 7 Space

11.4.3 Program Mission

11.4.3.1 Master in Public Policy

The Master in Public Policy (MPP) program provides an opportunity for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, intellectual and practical skills, aspects of competence and other attributes in Public Policy. In the current context of the rapidly evolving global socio-economic reality and technological spread, the policy making, and delivery function of the State have now become more challenging than at any time in the past.

Students who study the MPP at MBRSG can become specialized policymakers and policy analysts as well as public governance leaders who facilitate creativity, skill and commitment in managing innovative and smart public policies.

11.4.4 Teaching and Learning

MBRSG believes that active learning and full student engagement is the most successful pedagogical approach (see Figure 8 on the next page). The learning, teaching and assessment approaches used throughout the program will encourage collaborative engagement among students. MBRSG aims to provide students with prompt feedback on their learning as well as reflective opportunities through which they can enhance their learning.

Students will be actively involved in a range of learning, teaching and assessment approaches as part of the program. Interactive lectures, guest lectures, seminars, tutorials, group work, class discussions, directed independent learning, online learning resources via the Virtual Learning Environment (Blackboard), self-access and field trips are some of the learning activities that will add value to the student experience in the MPP. Such active approaches are intentionally student-centered, foster involvement and engagement in all aspects of teaching and learning.

The MPP program will require active participation in learning activities and engagement with fellow students both individually and collaboratively.

In class learning will be supported by technology. Increasingly, lecturers will be using existing and emerging learning technologies to engage students in Virtual Learning activities. This will be facilitated using a variety of media and online tools such as podcasts, wikis, etc. At MBRSG the Virtual Learning Environment (VLE) is facilitated through Blackboard which will allow students flexible access to a diverse range of online resources, quizzes, discussion forums, learning materials and collaborative tools with which you can interact and learn with your peers.

Students will receive detailed module handbooks each year with information on teaching and learning strategies, assessment methods and reading materials. The academic faculty, the Library, the IT Office and the Student Affairs teams will provide any required support to students studying at MBRSG.

You will receive detailed module handbooks each year with information on teaching and learning strategies, assessment methods and reading materials. The academic faculty, the Library, the IT Office and the Student Affairs teams will provide any support you may need while studying at MBRSG.

11.4.4.1 Special Features of the Teaching and Learning Experience

This foundation course is considered a “not for credit” Module but will appear on the student’s Academic Transcript.

11.4.9 Orientation Session

The aim of the MBRSG Orientation Session is to introduce students to the range of services that are available to postgraduate students, as well as to provide them with essential information about registration and enrollment. It is also an opportunity for students to get acquainted with each other. During these sessions, faculty members will guide you through essential knowledge and skills to enhance your progression through the programs.

We propose that induction will answer many of the questions that students may have about what being a postgraduate student at MBRSG. The Orientation Session will be delivered the weekend prior to the commencement of the first semester of study. All new postgraduate students are required to attend.

In support of students at the commencement of their graduate studies or at what may be a return to an academic environment after a period away from higher education, MBRSG requires that all new students admitted to a graduate program attend the Orientation Session

During these sessions, faculty members will guide you through essential knowledge and skills to enhance your progression through the programs. The Orientation Session will answer many of the questions that students may have about what being a postgraduate student at MBRSG.

11.4.12.3 Elective Modules

Students studying in the Master in Public Policy (MPP), are required to take two (2) elective Modules as part of their degree program. The Electives can only be selected from the following Modules (MPP711, MPP713, MPP715, MPP717 or MPP719).

11.4.12.4 Pre-Requisite and/or Co-Requisite Modules

There are no pre-requisite and/or co-requisite Module(s) for students studying in the Master in Public Policy Program. Students must however have completed all four core (MPP701, MPP702, MPP703 and MPP704) and the two Elective Modules prior to being able to undertake the Dissertation Module.

11.4.12.5 Dissertation

The research dissertation is a very important part of a student's Master's degree. It is an opportunity for the student to acquire and apply transferable researching and academic writing skills. It is the part of the program where students can apply the analytical and problem-solving techniques, they have acquired during their studies to explore a specialist interest in greater depth. Although demanding, students often find the dissertation one of the most rewarding aspects of their Master's experience.

The requirements to undertake and complete the Dissertation Module within the Master in Public Policy programs are clearly specified in the Dissertation Handbook.

Students undertaking the Dissertation will prepare and successfully defend their Dissertation presenting results from their independent research performed under the direct supervision of a School faculty member.

The Dissertation Module Handbook details a series of stages that must be completed to successfully complete the Dissertation requirements of the MPP program.

Students commencing their dissertations will initially meet to attend an induction session, academic skills workshops and a proposal writing workshop. Students will then engage with faculty and discuss their individual topics.

The submission of proposals will be in week 3 and students will defend their proposals at the end of that week.

They will be assigned and meet with their supervisor and arrange supervisory meetings for the remainder of the semester; the recommended minimum is four meetings per semester as detailed in the dissertation handbook.

For full-time students a progress report will be due in weeks 3 & 7; the submission of the dissertation is in week 15 and the defense in weeks 16 or 17.

Part-time students a progress report will be due in weeks 3, 15, 21 & 26; the submission of the dissertation is in week 31 and the defense in weeks 32-34.

11.4.12.6 Progression and Academic Standing

In accordance with the Student Academic Progression Policy (P-REG-105), students studying in the Master in Public Policy (MPP) program must maintain a 'Good Academic Standing' to progress through their program of study to successfully meet the graduation completion requirements.

Student's studying in the Master in Public Policy (MPP) program must maintain an overall average grade of Pass with Merit, or above, under the European Credit Accumulation Transfer Scheme (CATS) Credits system. Failure to do so will adversely impact a student's progression and may lead to a period of Academic Probation or ultimately dismissal from the program should academic performance fail to improve. This will be confirmed by the Progression Board.

11.4.12.7 Program Duration

The minimum and maximum timeframes for completion of the Master in Public Policy (MPP) degree program are specified in the Graduate Completion Policy (P-ACD-134) and in Table 29 below:

Table 29: Minimum and Maximum Program Duration Timeframes

Study Mode	Minimum completion period	Maximum completion period
Full-time	12 months (normally 3 Academic Semesters)	36 months (6 Academic Semesters)
Part-time	18 months	60 months (10 Academic Semesters)

11.4.13 Delivery Mode

Each taught Module, excluding the Dissertation, within the Master in Public Policy degree comprises 45 hours of face to face teaching each semester. Semesters are usually held over a period of 16 or 17 Weeks. The Timetable will normally consist of 13 teaching weeks, an International Field Trip (optional) Week, 1 or 2 weeks of Independent Study and a Final Assessment (Examination) week.

The 45 hours of face-to-face teaching will be delivered in 12 weekly 3.5 hour lectures from 4:30pm – 8.00pm from Sunday to Thursday, in accordance with the Academic Timetable. One further face to face, 3 hours, Project Block Learning Workshop is included, for each Module, each semester.

The delivery of each module is designed to allow students to actively engage with the material and critically reflect on the delivered content.

Modules are delivered on a weekly basis, which allows time for reflection between delivery sessions. Module teaching and learning is supported by the Blackboard virtual learning environment which enables online webinars, online discussion, for uploading of lecture materials and assessment submissions (via TurnItIn).

At the commencement of each semester in each Module a Module Handbook is provided to students which outlines the Module Objectives, Module Outcomes, Teaching timings and assessment requirements.

The Dissertation Module (MPP901) is conducted in an independent learning mode under the guidance of a faculty Supervisor supported by regular Workshops which are detailed in the Dissertation Handbook.

In some instances, it may be necessary to teach an MPP module (i.e., MPP704 Microeconomics of Competitiveness and some Elective Modules) in integrated units over weekend blocks during semester. In these instances, classes are delivered across three staggered weekend blocks, which allow time for reflection between delivery sessions. Each day comprises of seven hours direct contact. One further “face to face”, 3 hours, Project Block Learning Workshop is also included. Following the intensive teaching sessions, the students are assigned Directed Independent Learning (DIL) tasks which will reinforce and extend the taught content. Students are also expected to include self-access study time for critical analysis and reflection on content.

The Academic Calendar and Academic Timetable are published by the Registrar's Office at the commencement of each Semester and made available on the School website. The Academic Timetable will specify the dates and timings of Lectures for each MPP Module and details which MPP Modules will be taught on a weekly basis, and which will be taught in intensive blocks (weekends) mode.

11.4.14 Academic Advising

In accordance with the MBRSG Student Advisement Policy (P-SA-103), early in the first semester of enrolment in a Master in Public Policy (MPP) Program, each student is allocated a personal advisor who is a member of faculty. Faculty mentors advise and counsel students on a variety of matters, the majority on a walk-in basis. Faculty mentors may discuss special circumstances and personal issues affecting their students and offer guidance. Students are expected to meet with their academic advisor a minimum of two times per semester.

For further information on academic advising at the Mohammad Bin Rashid School of Government; please refer to the Student Advisement Policy (P-SA-103), available from the Registrar's Office and/or Section 6.17 of this Catalog regarding Academic Advisors.

11.4.15 Completion Requirements

The graduation completion requirements to be eligible to have a graduate award conferred are clearly detailed in the Graduate Completions Policy (P-ACD-134) and noted in Section 11.4.15.1 and 11.4.15.2 below. A graduate award will only be conferred upon the approval of the Award Board.

11.4.16 Careers and Employability

Our Master in Public Policy graduates will find themselves working in a range of public and private sector organizations. The MPP degree will equip graduates to operate effectively in an environment where public policy options have multiplied and where the boundaries between public and private entities have become increasingly blurred.

MPP graduates can also be promoted into senior policy making and decision-making roles with the public or private sector, because they now have a breath of applied knowledge related to the field of public policy.

11.4.17 Graduate Module Descriptions: Master in Public Policy (MPP) Program

11.4.17.1 MPP701: Governance and Policy Process (Core) (20 CATS Credits)

This module facilitates the students' understanding of the theories of governance and public policy process as a critical step to analyze policies in the current context of globalization and governance. The aim of the module is to offer students the knowledge of key issues and processes in public policy to enable them to appreciate how globalization, technology, innovation, and other emerging challenges impact the various phases of policymaking as well as policy implementation and evaluation.

Through local and international case studies, the module also provides a comparative perspective of different public policy paradigms in the contemporary world with a special reference to the UAE and MENA region.

This module also explores the institutions and processes in public policy making, implementation and evaluation and how leadership plays a catalyst role in policy change and policy adaption. Finally, it examines how future governments will adopt smart policies to shape the social, economic, and environmental growth and sustainability in the UAE and Arab region.

11.4.17.2 MPP702: Research Methods for Public Policy Analysis (Core) (20 CATS Credits)

This module is designed to give students an understanding of the qualitative and quantitative research methods needed for public policy analysis. Module topics include research design (this includes defining research problems, formulating research questions and reviewing literature), research strategy, methods and data collection tools. Students will be introduced with a wide range of qualitative tools such as case studies, grounded theory, and action research as well as quantitative tools moving from descriptive statistics to regression analysis.

The module will enhance students' skill in evaluating published research and learn how to use different research methods in their own research and studies in order to grasp and analyze issues related to public administration and public policy, including the evaluation of policy alternatives. They will learn to formulate research questions, design surveys, systematically conduct research and operationalize variables.

11.4.17.3 MPP703: Public Economic and Finance (Core) (20 CATS Credits)

This module examines the economic foundations of policy analysis and fiscal administration by introducing basic microeconomic principles and tools required to understand the role of government in the economy. It explores the rationale for government intervention, the goals of intervention (achieving allocative efficiency, redistribution, and stabilization), and the prospect of government failure in making such interventions succeed.

More specifically, the module provides an overview of the assumptions of perfect competition and considers a variety of situations in which the ideal of a perfect market breaks down, including the cases of public goods, externalities, market power, natural monopolies and asymmetric information. It uses actual policy problems to demonstrate applications of the theoretical framework to areas of education, health, environment, social security and others. It also provides an overview of public sector budgeting and other methods for financial management, regulation and control drawing on contemporary public finance issues. It also provides an overview of regulatory economics and reviews the recent research on implications of behavioral economics for public policy making.

11.4.17.4 MPP704: Microeconomics of Competitiveness (Core) (20 CATS Credits)

The module is concerned with the determinants of competitiveness and economic development viewed from a bottom up, microeconomic perspective. While sound macroeconomic policies, stable legal and political systems, and the accumulation of factors of production affect the potential for competitiveness, wealth is created at the microeconomic level. The strategies of firms, the vitality of clusters, and quality of the business environment in which competition takes place are what ultimately determines a nation's or region's productivity and wealth. The content covers both developing and advanced economies. The focus is on emerging, transition and advanced countries where microeconomic agendas are critical to sustained success. Furthermore, the module addresses competitiveness at the level of nations, states or cities within nations, clusters, and groups of neighboring countries. A major theme of the module is that competitiveness and economic development is affected by policies at all these levels.

The module is also concerned with government policy but also with the roles of business, universities, and other institutions in competitiveness. In modern international competition, the roles of the constituencies have shifted and expanded, and the traditional separation between them works against successful economic development. Also, the ability to mount and sustain a competitiveness strategy for a nation or region is a daunting challenge.

The module explores not only theory and policy, but also the nature of the organizational structure and institutions for sustained improvements in competitiveness. In addition to both macro and micro policy choices, the module underlines the role of history, i.e., the legacy of nations (such as language, culture and general institutions), and geography, i.e., the regional circumstances (such as the level of development among neighboring nations and the intensity in regional interaction).

11.4.17.5 MPP711: Social Policy (20 CATS Credits)

This module explains theories of public policy with a focus on social policies and current reform challenges in that. The overall aim of the module is to help the students understand the interplay between socio-economic context, social policy actors and institutions in a global, regional (MENA) and local (UAE) setting. The module highlights how social policies are analyzed and developed through this interplay. The role of global governance in shaping social policy reform processes is investigated to underscore the interplay dynamics.

This module also introduces students to contemporary political economy of the MENA region - this includes the role of government, civil society, and private sector as well as the legacy of Islamic institutions and the oil economics. After this, it covers key social (and economic) policy sectors including health, education, public welfare, demography, labor markets & unemployment, elderly care, gender, and youth development.

11.4.17.6 MPP713: Education Policy and Development (20 CATS Credits)

Education is a significant area of public policy; the main aim of this module is to provide students with a holistic understanding of core debates in the area of education policy and a practical knowledge of how education policy is shaped.

This module will use a comparative perspective to introduce students to education challenges in the MENA region, especially as they relate to educational access and equality of educational opportunities.

This Module will provide students with an overview of the process of education policy formation, analysis, and evaluation while paying special attention to the role of research in the policy making process. Finally, selected cases and research on education challenges and reforms in the MENA will be utilized to put into practice the knowledge and policy analysis skills gained earlier in the module.

11.4.17.7 MPP715: Health Policy Law & Ethics Management (20 CATS Credits)

This module provides an understanding of health policy, which reflects authoritative decisions and the process of decision-making, carried out at the federal, state, and local levels, which affect personal health and access to and delivery of health services in the United Arab Emirates. Students will gain knowledge of the levels within which health policy is carried out, the process for policy development and implementation, key stakeholders and interest groups involved in the health policy process, and how health policy changes over time within the United Arab Emirates and other countries such as the United States.

The health policy management aspect of this module provides the student with an understanding of law, regulation, and court decisions that affect healthcare organizations, as well as ethical underpinnings and principles that healthcare organizations follow in the delivery of services. In addition, accreditation as a form of regulation will be addressed. Key ethical principles underpinning healthcare organizations will be considered, as will recent court decisions that impact healthcare organizations and management roles.

11.4.17.8 MPP717: Sustainable Development: The Challenge (20 CATS Credits)

This module develops the study of sustainable development through a focus on governance and policy. It considers the core Global and Regional challenges of sustainable development: the problem of balancing the economic, social and environmental costs and benefits of development, both for people now and for future generations. The module investigates who applies and implements sustainable development principles, and where and how these principles are applied and implemented. The module emphasizes that sustainable development is a political process, one that raises important ethical questions.

Students will analyze some of the different policies and approaches that have been formulated to implement sustainable development by governments, communities, and corporate sectors. In establishing the locus of sustainable development principles, the module will examine who the different actors are, and how sustainability is measured in different contexts including in developed and developing countries.

The module also helps participants to better design and run performance management systems for the employees in their organizations. Managerial practices regarding human capital and performance management strategies and techniques are brought into sharper focus in an attempt to explain how to recruit, motivate, manage and measure the performance of public employees. The module builds upon students' knowledge and understanding in the areas of organizational behavior and leadership, encouraging them to evaluate their own experiences and to discover the link between interpersonal skills, performance management, and organizational goals.

The theoretical discussions of HR models and performance management will be accompanied by case study analysis and group discussions of genuine organizational problems. Combining the theoretical and practical aspects will enable students to develop general frameworks of understanding and apply these frameworks to solve organizational and performance issues in a wide range of administrative situations.

11.5.19.3 EMPA1503 Public Finance and Government Funding (20 CATS Credits)

Public finance issues are central to economic and political landscapes worldwide, as one of the primary functions of government is to generate resources from its people, and in return to spend the money to improve their lives. However, while the concept of “money from the people, for the people” is quite simple conceptually, there is little agreement on how best to raise and spend public funds in practice.

The module covers: the role and size of the public sector, including the rationale for public sector interventions such as market failure and distributional concerns; key factors determining a nation's fiscal architecture; public resource mobilization via user charges and taxation, including the economics of taxation, taxation of income (personal and corporate income tax), wealth (property tax), and consumption (sales, excise, and value added taxes), tax incentives, tax compliance and enforcement, and tax reform; public expenditure policy, including assessment of government social protection programs, megaprojects, public sector efficiency and effectiveness, and the role of the private sector in the production and provision of public goods and services; fiscal balance and deficit financing; and fiscal decentralization and intergovernmental fiscal relations.

The module will also explore public finance challenges for both national and subnational governments in coping with the impact of the recent global economic crisis.

11.5.19.4 EMPA1504 Public Policy Analysis (20 CATS Credits)

The module explores the different traditions and theories of public policy analysis and the importance of using such theoretical frameworks for the analysis and understanding of governance and development. Its focal aim is to explore various analytical approaches and tools in the way in which policymaking and policy evaluation within the public sector are necessarily different to the approaches adopted in private sector and third sector organizations.

The module also seeks to examine how complex structures and institutions can be explained in ways which are meaningful and have an academic and practitioner interest in the UAE, MENA and beyond the Arab region.

11.5.19.5 EMPA1505 Administrative Leadership and Institutional Performance Management (20 CATS Credits)

This module introduces students to theories and practice of administrative leadership in public sector organizations and the impact they make on institutional performance management. The way in which administrative leaders undertake their duties influences organizational performance and in turn the ability of employees to achieve organizational goals and objectives.

This module considers the interrelationship between organizational performance and leadership in government. The module discusses resolving strategy paradoxes to create competitive advantage. The impact of leadership styles and dynamics on organizational performance will be studied to determine how different leadership practices affect organizational performance in public organizations.

Class discussions and activities will focus on the analysis of administrative leadership and organizational performance in the context of the GCC as well as comparing this experience with other nations.

Case studies will help students to underscoring the pitfalls of ineffective administrative leadership and how weak and poor leaders may hamper the efforts for achieving organizational and institutional goals.

11.5.19.6 EMPA1506 Leadership in Conflict Resolution and Negotiation (20 CATS Credits)

This module develops paradigm of leadership within conflict and negotiation. It facilitates the students' understanding of the nature of various types of conflicts in public and private sectors and how good negotiations could mitigate their effects on work morale.

The module proposes to enable students to address the causes and appreciate the consequences of conflict as well as to offer them the conflict resolution skills and strategies in public sector organizations. The module also develops the concept of Game Theory within areas of conflict and cooperation and competing interests and discusses complex adaptive systems in the context of global macroeconomic networks.

11.5.19.7 EMPA1507 Global Governance (20 CATS Credits)

This module will investigate diverse policy issues and the equally diverse structures of governance and diplomacy regulating them at the international, transnational, state and sub-state levels.

The program will equip students to understand, explain and practice governance and diplomacy in the contemporary global era. Inter-Governmental Organizations provide important channels of communication between states and mechanisms for galvanizing international action on issues of global concern. They are also important actors in global governance.

The module will include a study visit for students that will reinforce classroom teaching by enabling MBRSG students to learn more about the subject of Global Governance encouraging intercultural competency and understanding, and developing knowledge of the international community, and a sense of global understanding within the field.

The module will address three key 'gaps' that are referred to in global governance discussions:

1. The jurisdictional gap, between the increasing need for global governance in many areas - such as health - and the lack of an authority with the power, or jurisdiction, to act.
2. The incentive gap, between the need for international cooperation and the motivation to undertake it. The incentive gap is said to be closing as globalization provides increasing impetus for countries to cooperate. However, there are concerns that, as a Country lags further behind economically, its influence on global governance processes will diminish.
3. The participation gap, which refers to the fact that international cooperation, remains primarily the affair of governments, leaving civil society groups on the fringes of policy-making. On the other hand, globalization of communication is facilitating the development of global civil society movements.

11.5.19.8 EMPA1508 Advanced Topics in Contemporary Public Administration (20 CATS Credits)

The module also introduces the latest innovations and developments at the global level in terms of the directions that governments take to deal with organizational, social, technological and economic impacts of these innovations and developments.

Finally, the module discusses other topics such as public sector reform, digital governance, institutional agility along with some of the contemporary issues facing the public sector including the dynamics of hybrid work, civil service challenges, artificial intelligence.

The Postgraduate Diploma in Innovation Management is an (Exit) Award from Master in Innovation Management program.

11.6.17.1 MIM711: Frontiers of Innovation (20 CATS Credits)

Organizations that are consistently successful at managing innovation outperform their peers in terms of growth, financial performance and employment. The broader social benefits of innovation are even greater. However, as this course will demonstrate, innovation is not easy to develop within any organization and requires an approach that is quite different from that offered by standard management tools. The strategic management of innovation requires more than just adding it to the functions of an organization. Instead, it needs an integrated approach that deals with interactions between changes in technology, organizations and markets. This course will explore the different elements that develop and sustain innovation within various organizations and, given the strategic imperative within the UAE to develop a more innovative economy, will also explore the importance of innovation within a national context. It will therefore provide learners with opportunities to explore experiences of innovation and entrepreneurship in action and reflect, in a structured manner, on these experiences and the lessons that emerge from them. It will also introduce concepts that provide the basis for understanding innovation, how it can be managed, and enable the student to experiment with these conceptual models to help make sense of managing innovation.

This module will introduce you to the basic concepts and terminology of innovation that provide for a common foundation of the subject that will help you interact with other innovation experts. You will learn theoretical frameworks and develop the necessary skills to implement them successfully by analyzing information, managing expectations, learning experimentation to test your ideas and thus create robust innovation strategies. You should be able to recommend, monitor and manage innovation within your organizations. Given the strategic imperative within the UAE to develop a more innovative economy and UAE's vision to be a leader in the international context, this course will also explore the importance of innovation within a national and international context. You will also get opportunities to explore experiences of innovation and entrepreneurship in action and reflect in a structured manner on these experiences and the lessons that emerge from them.

11.6.17.2 MIM712: Public Sector Innovation and Foresight (20 CATS Credits)

Public sector innovation - where new ideas create value for society. In recent years, there has been increasingly more concerted efforts to develop a systematic approach to creating innovative solutions to address societal challenges as well as understand potential future changes.

This Module will examine key issues in terms of public sector innovation as well as horizon scanning, which, because of changing political agendas and a desire for action during the last few decades, has led to continuous organizational change becoming common in many parts of the public sector.

This trend has accelerated after the last global economic and financial crises, as governments seek to understand potential future scenarios, and reform, restructure and reorganize their public sector activities to deliver more efficient and effective services. In addition, citizens' expectations of higher value service innovations are increasing despite fiscal pressures, especially in terms of greater choice and quality.

Other important issues such as demographics, technology and climate change. Some would argue that many public sector organizations are not up to the job of developing and implementing solutions to deal with these challenges. Many public servants focus too much on short-term needs of politicians; are too bureaucratic and hierarchical to deal with change; have an aversion to failure that restricts new ideas; do not place citizens at the heart of their policymaking; cannot scale new solutions sufficiently; and have few formal methods for promoting innovation.

11.6.17.3 MIM713: Service Innovation (20 CATS Credits)

Public value is heavily dependent on the services employed as a method of delivery. Very often these are services where the user has no choice, which makes them critical to a government's success and international competitiveness. With the service sector creating most of the wealth and employment within developed and emerging economies, ensuring that the sector continues to innovate presents several challenges. These challenges are not only about the design and development of the service innovation, its delivery, and its impact measurement. This course will not only examine some of the key issues from academic research and management practice on services innovation but will enable the learner to build the skills and capabilities necessary to better design services, especially in new ways in which service innovation takes place. The pedagogical method we use is that of design thinking for problem solving and this is done through a series of lectures and workshops.

The service sector creates most of the wealth and employment within developed and emerging economies. This fact alone ensures that the need to innovate in this sector maybe critical for ongoing competitiveness of the country.

For citizens, often the first stage of interaction with the government is the services they experience. Service innovation begins with a customer centric process.

We will use design-thinking in this course and workshop pedagogical model to understand service strategy design for complex problems at both organizational levels and at the national level. This course will examine some of the key issues from academic research (like behavioral insights) and management practice on services innovation which will enable the learner to build the skills and capabilities necessary to better design services, leading to greater customer satisfaction.

Service innovation is needed also at the supra-country level. The global goals which are wicked problems need a collaborative global perspective - across countries, across sectors, across both private and public organizations if we are to achieve SDGs like zero poverty and zero hunger by 2030. For example, one study states there is enough food to feed every single individual, but we may need to redesign processes in our supply chain and change regulations.

11.6.17.4 MIM714: Microeconomics of Competitiveness (20 CATS Credits)

The module is concerned with the determinants of competitiveness and economic development viewed from a bottom up, microeconomic perspective. While sound macroeconomic policies, stable legal and political systems, and the accumulation of factors of production affect the potential for competitiveness, wealth is created at the microeconomic level. The strategies of firms, the vitality of clusters, and quality of the business environment in which competition takes place are what ultimately determines a nation's or region's productivity and wealth. The content covers both developing and advanced economies. The focus is on emerging, transitioning and advanced countries where microeconomic agendas are critical to sustained success. Furthermore, the module addresses competitiveness at the level of nations, states or cities within nations, clusters, and groups of neighboring countries. A major theme of the course is that competitiveness and economic development are affected by policies at all these levels.

The module is not only concerned with government policy, but also with the roles of business, universities, and other institutions in competitiveness. In modern international competition, the roles of the constituencies have shifted and expanded, and the traditional separation between them works against successful economic development. Also, the ability to mount and sustain a competitiveness strategy for a nation or region is a daunting challenge. The course explores not only theory and policy, but also the nature of the organizational structure and institutions for sustained improvements in competitiveness.

In addition to both macro and micro policy choices, the course underlines the role of history, i.e., the legacy of nations (such as language, culture and general institutions), and geography, i.e., the regional circumstances (such as the level of development among neighboring nations and the intensity in regional interaction).

11.6.17.5 MIM715: Research Methods (20 CATS Credits)

This Module is designed to give students an understanding of the qualitative and quantitative research methods needed by public administrators. Course topics include research design (this includes defining research problems, formulating research questions and reviewing literature), research strategy, methods and data collection tools. Students will be introduced to a wide range of qualitative tools such as case studies, grounded theory and action research as well as quantitative tools moving from descriptive statistics to regression analysis.

The Module will enhance students' skill in evaluating published research and learn how to use research methods in their own research, in order to grasp and analyses issues related to public administration and public policy. They will learn to formulate research questions, design surveys, systematically conduct research and operationalize variables.

11.6.17.6 MIM716: Strategic Management and Leadership (20 CATS Credits)

This module facilitates students' understanding of the process of strategic thinking, planning, and implementation, to facilitate a culture of innovation in government organizations. The relationships between organizational resources, goals, objectives and means will be fully considered to find out how public organizations deploy these resources to achieve their visions and missions, and to advance innovative public services. The role of leadership in defining organizational processes, goals, objectives and shaping the overall strategic orientation of the organization will be discussed to highlight how dynamic interactions between different organizational levels and teams could achieve innovation.

The module also addresses the difficulty of adopting strategic management in public sector innovation and considers how to deal with the problems of implementation of innovative strategies. A case study approach will be adopted to link theory with practice and help students apply their knowledge in the UAE and the MENA region.

11.7.13 Delivery Mode

Each taught Master in Public Policy (MPP) module, and therefore Postgraduate Diploma in Public Policy Module, comprises 45 hours of face to face teaching each semester. Semesters are usually held over a period of 16 or 17 Weeks. The Timetable will normally consist of 13 teaching weeks, an International Field Trip (optional) Week, 1 or 2 weeks of Independent Study and a Final Assessment (Examination) week.

The 45 hours of face-to-face teaching will be delivered in 12 weekly 3.5-hour lectures from 4:30pm – 8.00pm from Sunday to Thursday, in accordance with the Academic Timetable. One further face to face, 3 hours, Project Block Learning Workshop is included, for each Module, each semester.

The delivery of each module is designed to allow students to actively engage with the material and critically reflect on the delivered content.

Modules are delivered on a weekly basis, which allows time for reflection between delivery sessions. Module teaching and learning is supported by the Blackboard virtual learning environment which enables online webinars, online discussion, for uploading of lecture materials and assessment submissions (via TurnItIn).

At the commencement of each semester in each Module a Module Handbook is provided to students which outlines the Module Objectives, Module Outcomes, Teaching timings and assessment requirements.

In some instances, it may be necessary to teach an MPP (Postgraduate Diploma in Public Policy) module (i.e., MPP704 Microeconomics of Competitiveness and some Elective Modules) in integrated units over weekend blocks during semester. In these instances, classes are delivered across three staggered weekend blocks, which allow time for reflection between delivery sessions. Each day comprises of seven hours direct contact. One further “face-to-face”, 3 hours, Project Block Learning Workshop is also included. Following the intensive teaching sessions, the students are assigned Directed Independent Learning (DIL) tasks which will reinforce and extend the taught content. Students are also expected to include self-access study time for critical analysis and reflection on content.

The Academic Calendar and Academic Timetable are published by the Registrar’s Office at the commencement of each Semester and made available on the School website. The Academic Timetable will specify the dates and timings of Lectures for each MPP (Postgraduate Diploma in Public Policy) Module and details which MPP (Postgraduate Diploma in Public Policy) Modules will be taught on a weekly basis, and which will be taught in intensive blocks (weekends) mode.

11.7.14 Academic Advising

In accordance with the MBRSG Student Advisement Policy (P-SA-103), early in the first semester of enrolment in a Master in Public Policy (MPP) Program, each student (including those intending to exit with a Postgraduate Diploma in Public Policy award) is allocated a personal advisor who is a member of faculty. Faculty mentors advise and council students on a variety of matters, the majority on a walk-in basis. Faculty mentors may discuss special circumstances and personal issues affecting their students and offer guidance. Students are expected to meet with their academic advisor a minimum of two times per semester.

For further information on academic advising at the Mohammad Bin Rashid School of Government; please refer to the Student Advisement Policy (P-SA-103), available from the Registrar's Office and/or Section 6.17 of this Catalog regarding Academic Advisors.

11.7.15 Completion Requirements

The graduation completion requirements to be eligible to have a graduate award conferred are clearly detailed in the Graduate Completions Policy (P-ACD-134). A graduate award will only be conferred upon the approval of the Award Board.

11.7.15.1 Completion Requirements for a Postgraduate Diploma in Public Policy (Exit) Award

To be awarded a Postgraduate Diploma in Public Policy (PgD) the following must be satisfied:

11.7.17 Graduate Module Descriptions: Postgraduate Diploma in Policy

(Exit) Award from Master in Public Policy programs only

11.7.17.1 MPP701: Governance and Policy Process (Core) (20 CATS Credits)

This module facilitates the students' understanding of the theories of governance and public policy process as a critical step to analyze policies in the current context of globalization and governance. The aim of the module is to offer students the knowledge of key issues and processes in public policy to enable them to appreciate how globalization, technology, innovation, and other emerging challenges impact the various phases of policymaking as well as policy implementation and evaluation.

Through local and international case studies, the module also provides a comparative perspective of different public policy paradigms in the contemporary world with a special reference to the UAE and MENA region.

This module also explores the institutions and processes in public policy making, implementation and evaluation and how leadership plays a catalyst role in policy change and policy adaption. Finally, it examines how future governments will adopt smart policies to shape the social, economic and environmental growth and sustainability in the UAE and Arab region.

11.7.17.2 MPP702: Research Methods for Public Policy Analysis (Core) (20 CATS Credits)

This module is designed to give students an understanding of the qualitative and quantitative research methods needed for public policy analysis. Module topics include research design (this includes defining research problems, formulating research questions and reviewing literature), research strategy; methods and data collection tools. Students will be introduced with a wide range of qualitative tools such as case studies, grounded theory and action research as well as quantitative tools moving from descriptive statistics to regression analysis.

The module will enhance students' skill in evaluating published research and learn how to use different research methods in their own research and studies in order to grasp and analyze issues related to public administration and public policy, including the evaluation of policy alternatives. They will learn to formulate research questions, design surveys, systematically conduct research and operationalize variables.

11.7.17.3 MPP703: Public Economic and Finance (Core) (20 CATS Credits)

This module examines the economic foundations of policy analysis and fiscal administration by introducing basic microeconomic principles and tools required to understand the role of government in the economy. It explores the rationale for government intervention, the goals of intervention (achieving allocative efficiency, redistribution and stabilization), and the prospect of government failure in making such interventions succeed.

More specifically, the module provides an overview of the assumptions of perfect competition and considers a variety of situations in which the ideal of a perfect market breaks down, including the cases of public goods, externalities, market power, natural monopolies and asymmetric information. It uses actual policy problems to demonstrate applications of the theoretical framework to areas of education, health, environment, social security and others. It also provides an overview of public sector budgeting and other methods for financial management, regulation and control drawing on contemporary public finance issues. It also provides an overview of regulatory economics and reviews the recent research on implications of behavioral economics for public policy making.

11.7.17.4 MPP704: Microeconomics of Competitiveness (Core) (20 CATS Credits)

The module is concerned with the determinants of competitiveness and economic development viewed from a bottom up, microeconomic perspective. While sound macroeconomic policies, stable legal and political systems, and the accumulation of factors of production affect the potential for competitiveness, wealth is created at the microeconomic level. The strategies of firms, the vitality of clusters, and quality of the business environment in which competition takes place are what ultimately determines a nation's or region's productivity and wealth. The content covers both developing and advanced economies. The focus is on emerging, transition and advanced countries where microeconomic agendas are critical to sustained success. Furthermore, the module addresses competitiveness at the level of nations, states or cities within nations, clusters, and groups of neighboring countries. A major theme of the module is that competitiveness and economic development is affected by policies at all these levels.

The module is also concerned with government policy but also with the roles of business, universities, and other institutions in competitiveness. In modern international competition, the roles of the constituencies have shifted and expanded, and the traditional separation between them works against successful economic development. Also, the ability to mount and sustain a competitiveness strategy for a nation or region is a daunting challenge.

The module explores not only theory and policy, but also the nature of the organizational structure and institutions for sustained improvements in competitiveness. In addition to both macro and micro policy choices, the module underlines the role of history, i.e., the legacy of nations (such as language, culture and general institutions), and geography, i.e., the regional circumstances (such as the level of development among neighboring nations and the intensity in regional interaction).

11.7.17.5 MPP711: Social Policy (20 CATS Credits)

This module explains theories of public policy with a focus on social policies and current reform challenges in that. The overall aim of the module is to help the students understand the interplay between socio-economic context, social policy actors and institutions in a global, regional (MENA) and local (UAE) setting. The module highlights how social policies are analyzed and developed through this interplay. The role of global governance in shaping social policy reform processes is investigated to underscore the interplay dynamics.

This module also introduces students to contemporary political economy of the MENA region - this includes the role of government, civil society, and private sector as well as the legacy of Islamic institutions and the oil economics. After this, it covers key social (and economic) policy sectors including health, education, public welfare, demography, labor markets & unemployment, elderly care, gender, and youth development.

11.7.17.6 MPP713: Education Policy and Development (20 CATS Credits)

Education is a significant area of public policy; the main aim of this module is to provide students with a holistic understanding of core debates in education policy and a practical knowledge of how education policy is shaped.

This module will use a comparative perspective to introduce students to education challenges in the MENA region, especially as they relate to educational access and equality of educational opportunities.

This Module will provide students with an overview of the process of education policy formation, analysis, and evaluation while paying special attention to the role of research in the policy making process. Finally, selected cases and research on education challenges and reforms in the MENA will be utilized to put into practice the knowledge and policy analysis skills gained earlier in the module.

11.7.17.7 MPP715: Health Policy Law & Ethics Management (20 CATS Credits)

This module provides an understanding of health policy, which reflects authoritative decisions and the process of decision-making, carried out at the federal, state, and local levels, which affect personal health and access to and delivery of health services in the United Arab Emirates. Students will gain knowledge of the levels within which health policy is carried out, the process for policy development and implementation, key stakeholders and interest groups involved in the health policy process, and how health policy changes over time within the United Arab Emirates and other countries such as the United States.

The health policy management aspect of this module provides the student with an understanding of law, regulation, and court decisions that affect healthcare organizations, as well as ethical underpinnings and principles that healthcare organizations follow in the delivery of services. In addition, accreditation as a form of regulation will be addressed. Key ethical principles underpinning healthcare organizations will be considered, as will recent court decisions that impact healthcare organizations and management roles.

11.7.17.8 MPP717: Sustainable Development: The Challenge (20 CATS Credits)

This module develops the study of sustainable development through a focus on governance and policy. It considers the core Global and Regional challenges of sustainable development: the problem of balancing the economic, social and environmental costs and benefits of development, both for people now and for future generations. The module investigates who applies and implements sustainable development principles, and where and how these principles are applied and implemented. The module emphasizes that sustainable development is a political process, one that raises important ethical questions.

Students will analyze some of the different policies and approaches that have been formulated to implement sustainable development by governments, communities, and corporate sectors. In establishing the locus of sustainable development principles, the module will examine who the different actors are, and how sustainability is measured in different contexts including in developed and developing countries.

11.7.17.9 MPP719: The Political Economy of Science Policy (20 CATS Credits)

This module focuses on policy issues concerning the organization, funding, and performance of research systems. These issues are at the heart of Science and Technology. They are also highly topical and international in scope. The module will encourage a greater depth of analysis and independent study by students of current theories, policies, and practices in key areas of research policy. Investment in new production facilities is one of the main ways industry applies new technology. The economic, social and environmental consequences of industrial expansion depend heavily on how firms manage the technological aspects of investment projects. The concepts of Cyber security and Energy security are additionally developed within the module.

Topics to be covered include changing rationales for the public funding of research; the US research system; the European research system; the Chinese research system; systems of research assessment; science and research indicators & metrics; foresight methods and tools; science diplomacy; responsible research and innovation; and the governance of emerging technologies.
